Truman Is Sure Korean Problem To Straighten Out

WASHINGTON, July 6—President Truman said today he has no present plans to ask Congress for additional military funds or to call out the National Guard, and declared he is confident of victory in Korea.

The chief executive denied published reports that he plans to call up 40 reserve battalions. He told his news conference that the matter had not even been discussed.

Mr. Truman refused comment on Chiang Kai-shek's offer of 30,000 seasoned Chinese Nationalist troops for use in Korea.

The President's expression of confidence that U. S. forces will hurl the Communist invaders out of South Korea came in the face of continued reports of Red successes.

Mr. Truman was reluctant to comment at all on the Korean situation.

In response to questions, however, he did say that he is confident the situation will work out all right.

The President was asked whether he is still hopeful about American action in Korea despite the present situation. He replied: "Of course, I am. It will work out all right."

The President was negative or uncommunicative in answer to a series of other questions regarding the Korean situation.

Asked if he would request additional military funds from Congress, he said he would not at this time.

The President asserted he does not plan to call up the National Guard.

Mr. Truman was asked also about published reports that he would call up 40 reserve battalions.

The President said flatly that such a proposal has not been discussed by the authorities who deal with such matters at all.

He observed that there are a lot of so-called military experts who are doing a great deal of writing these days without knowing what they are talking about.

Mr. Truman decliined to say what action he would take on the offer of 30,000 Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa for use in Korea.

The President said that that offer involved a decision in the realm of international politics and he did not propose to comment on it.

Asked whether he expected to get an industrial mobilization report shortly from National Security Resources Board Chairman Symington, the President said that report is always up to date and he could get it any time he needs to.

The President said he was happy to hear from Defense Secretary Johnson that top defense officials are going to make no more speeches, but are going to devote their time to defense work instead.

For himself, Mr. Truman said that he has no speaking dates in mind at this time.

When reminded that the Korean fighting seems to be moving at a rapid pace not too favorable for the southern defenders, the President said that he was not in a position to comment on the situation there this morning.

The Korean war promises to be costly to the United States in both manpower and money, according to some observers.

Defense spokesmen said that hope is fading that the situation can be handled within present budget and personnel limitations. The only alternative is for the armed forces to ask Congress for more money and more men—probably reserves.

The need for men and money was underlined by a flat Navy statement that said "of course we are shy of both ships and men, but we cannot get more under our present ceilings."

The Navy's statement was made by a top information officer late Wednesday to newsmen gathered for a briefing on the war situation.

Unless the fighting can be wound up quickly, its total requirements threaten to dwarf those of the year-long Berlin Airlift, the cost of which was officially set at $50 million.

The Airlift, with no shooting, involved about 15,000 Americans and 200 large transport planes.

By comparison, at least 50,000 Americans already are involved in operations to support the South Koreans. At least 1,000 military planes and a huge war fleet are engaged in all-out attacks.

Red Gain In Korea Costly

Yankee Troops Outnumbered

TOKYO, July 7—(Friday)—Powerfully reinforced Communist armored columns crashed through advanced lines of outmanned American troops in South Korea Thursday and plunged to within 20 miles of vital Taejon's Kum river defenses, but at staggering cost in enemy tanks and men.

General Douglas MacArthur announced "general reinforcements" of Red troops, artillery and tanks were being poured in from both the west and east against United States defense lines.

Strong American reinforcements, brought to Korea in troopships from Japan reached Taejon and were speeding north today (Friday) to meet the rampaging Red offensive.

MacArthur's midnight communique reported three North Korean divisions—30,000 troops—were hammering southward on the center front with new tank support toward Osan, 15 miles south of fallen Suwon and Pyongtaek, eight miles farther south.

The Reds poured new troops, tanks and artillery into the captured port of Inchon, 15 miles southwest of Seoul, and sent additional columns toward the center front.

IT WAS ESTIMATED the enemy had up to 60,000 troops in action on all sectors.

Other Communist reinforcements reached the Samchok area on the east coast, and advanced enemy elements were reported at Pohang, 20 miles south of Samchok, as the envelopment move toward the central front section was pressed relentlessly.

MacArthur said a coordinated infantry-tank assault was made on American positions.

Earlier front dispatches reporting on this engagement credited bazooka-firing U. S. soldiers

President Irked By 'Unnecessary' Railroad Strike

WASHINGTON, July 6—President Truman threatened today to take drastic action to end the railroad strike tying up a number of midwestern and western carriers.

The chief executive told his news conference that there is no excuse for the strike, and that those in the minority who are tying up the railroads should go back to work.

The President accused the switchmen's union of flouting the Railway Labor Act and defying the mediation board which had recommended against its strike.

The President said the fact that the strike was tying up major railroads of the nation that are essential to the transportation of vital supplies of wheat and meat is sufficient reason to take drastic action to force the strikers back to work.

The President said he hoped such action would not be necessary but indicated that if necessary he will ask Congress for seizure powers and force an end to the strike.

The President said that at present the strike is not affecting movement of military supplies to the Far East. He said the strike is a domestic matter but that reasons of patriotism also are involved which should be considered by the strikers.

PMA SETS UP SCHEDULE

1950-Crop Wheat Loan Rate Set Here At $2.12

A basic loan rate for 1950-crop wheat produced in Pickaway County of $2.12 per bushel was announced Thursday by the Production and Marketing Administration county committee. Last year's rate was $2.08 per bushel.

The basic rate applies to wheat grading U. S. No. 1, John Boggs, committee chairman, pointed out.

Wheat produced on farms cooperating in the 1950 Wheat Acreage Allotment program grading No. 3 or better, or No. 4 or No. 5 because of test weight or because it contains wheat of the classes durum and-or red durum, will be eligible for Commodity Credit Corporation loan or purchase agreement. The chairman says that a schedule of premiums and discounts for the various qualities of 1950-crop wheat will be issued at an early date and will be available for inspection at the county PMA office in Circleville.

To be eligible for the loan, wheat must be placed in approved storage either on the farm or in a commercial warehouse or elevator, according to the chairman.

HE POINTED OUT further that storage allowances will be continued for 1950-crop wheat on the same general basis as last year.

Boggs explained that the county rate is based on a national average rate of $1.99 a bushel (predicated on No. 2 wheat) to farmers as announced by PMA on June 30. The equivalent national average rate for U. S. No. 1 wheat is $2.00 per bushel.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 requires that the price of 1950-crop wheat be supported to farmers at 90 percent of the parity price on July 1, 1950, the beginning of the marketing season. Boggs reported that the July 1 wheat parity price was $2.21 a bushel. For the same date last year the wheat parity price was $2.17 per bushel.

Loans and purchase agreements will be available from CCC through the county PMA office, in accordance with the program provisions, from time of harvest through January 1951. They will mature on April 30, 1951, or earlier, on demand.

The PMA also announced that 1950-crop corn in the commercial corn area will be supported at 90 percent of the parity price as of Oct. 1, 1950, for producers in compliance with acreage allotments.

For the non-commercial corn area an interim average loan

Denfield Seeks Governorship

WESTBORO, Mass., July 6—Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, former Chief of Naval Operations, was a declared candidate today for the Republican nomination for governor of Massachusetts.

Denfeld, a resident of Westboro, said, "I shall pull no punches and shall tell the truth as I see it."

One of his opponents for the nomination is Former Lt. Gov. Arthur W. Coolidge, cousin of the late President Calvin Coolidge.

Memorial Lake's 'Last Hitch' Is Nearly Unkinked

Pickaway County's long awaited Memorial Lake in Devil's Backbone may be ready for filling next week—barring further complications.

Workmen for the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. are expected to complete their work in the lake basin next week, removing the last hitch from the lake-filling program.

The workmen are installing a new, waterproofed pipeline through the lake area at present and removing the old line which caused the lake program to be held up.

Paul Leach of Sugar Grove, assistant in the pipeline replacement work, Thursday said the new line is being coated with a layer of tarpaper.

"The men should be finished next week," Leach said, "providing the weather permits work to go ahead."

Acheson Says U.S. Ready To Counter Any Communistic Pressure Anywhere

WASHINGTON, July 6 — The United States stands ready today to counter Communist pressures or outright aggression at any of the world's danger spots.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson made this clear in announcing America's readiness to deal with any new emergency in Berlin.

Yugoslavia, Greece and Iran are lumped with Berlin as the major potential trouble spots over the next few months.

Acheson said emphatically that this country's commitment of military forces in the fight to save South Korea will not weaken American support of Berlin, where the Soviets have cut off water and electric power supplies for the western sector.

This statement confirmed previous declarations that the Berlin Airlift will be resumed on a moment's notice, should that become necessary.

THE DEFENSE Department announced simultaneously that the United States will charter commercial air transports to move additional supplies and troops into Korea.

This is interpreted as a determination not to drain air transport strength from Continental Europe, where it might have to be thrown into action in any new emergency.

As against 175 heavy air transports used in the Berlin Airlift, the U. S. now has 36 C-54 (four-engine) transports in Europe, plus 48 C-82 (two-engine) flying boxcar type transports. Additional ships could be supplied in a matter of hours.

Earlier this week the 45,000-ton Carrier Midway was transferred to the Mediterranean, giving this country two big movable air bases in that area for the first time since the guerrilla fighting in Greece.

The Midway is understood to have been sent to the area because of the concern by military strategists that trouble might break out on the Yugoslavia or Greek borders.

Acheson told a news conference he was informed that conditions were tranquil on the borders of Iran, where Communist pressure has been a matter of concern.

It was a blockade of coal and food which produced the first Berlin Airlift. Before the aerial transport operation shut down, Western Berlin was heavily stockpiled with necessities to meet any future emergency.

UNOFFICIAL estimates are that the city had enough food and fuel to last several months.

Acheson countered Russian charges of responsibility in the Korean war by saying that the invasion of South Korea was a "case of utterly unprovoked aggression."

The secretary said any contention that the conflict was started by South Korea is in the category of "Nazi claims of 1939 that Poland started hostilities by attacking Nazi Germany."

Super Lie Detector Work Explained By Psychologist

Details of the successful use of a device which, employed with a standard lie detector, records emotions was announced Thursday in Columbus.

The photoelectric recorder developed by General Electric engineers has been tested successfully by Dr. Bernard R. Higley, psychologist of the Alfred L. Willson Children's Center in Columbus.

The same device determines the emotional response of subjects was used during the questioning of Robert Segee, 21-year-old half-Indian who confessed setting the 1944 Ringling Brothers Circus fire in Hartford, Conn., which took 168 lives.

Segee admitted setting the circus fire and also confessed several murders and minor fires. The very sensitive photoelectric cell was used during the questioning and revealed truth and lies in the arsonist's case.

Dr. Higley said the instrument already has revealed a new classification of abnormality which he described as "dead pan."

HE SAID THE device measures infinitesimal electric currents to provide clues to hidden causes of misbehavior in problem children.

Explaining the "dead pan" reaction, Dr. Higley said that 85 percent of this type of youth tested had spent time in disciplinary and penal institutions.

Electrodes are taped to the fingers and the recorder detects minute changes in the electric conductivity of the skin.

The equipment notes the reaction of the subjects to pictures which are flashed on a screen.

Dr. Higley said the pictures used portray environment, domestic situations and other stimuli designed to induce emotional reaction. He said that research currently is underway to determine the relationship between the "dead pan" type of reaction and later mental disorders.

The recorder was developed several years ago by the GE general engineering and consulting laboratory in Schenectady, N. Y.

Comic Book Brings Death

CINCINNATI, July 6—A comic book caused the death of a 13-year-old boy.

Lt. Ray Eagle, of the Cincinnati Life-Saving Squad, reported that Raymond McCall Jr. was suffocated when he lowered himself into an abandoned well to recover the book.

Carl Sheppard, 14, McCall's companion, ran to a nearby plant to get help when he saw Raymond keel over. A worker risked death himself to enter the well and lift out McCall's body, but the rescue squad was unable to revive the lad.

Couple Of Nice Days Due State, Weatherman Says

A couple of fair, less humid days were promised Ohioans Thursday by the weatherman.

The forecaster reported that the rain belt which hovered over the state for the last few days passed eastward to the Atlantic coast after dropping a few showers on Southeastern Ohio early Thursday.

"The next two days should be fair, less humid and generally pleasant throughout the state," he said, "with high temperatures between 75 and 85 both days. The higher marks will be in the south."

The mercury will drop into the 50s Thursday night, the forecaster said.

A flash flood swept a stream of water more than a foot deep through 25 to 30 homes in Lancaster Wednesday. However, the water receded by nightfall after three families had been forced to evacuate their homes.

THE COLUMBUS weather bureau reported that the first half of the week ending July 4th was cool with three nights having temperatures of 50 degrees or lower in northern and central counties. Lowest temperature was 44 degrees, but the mercury was near normal during the latter half of the seven-day period.

Fast Flyers Tangled In Illinois

Santa Fe Units Are Telescoped

MONICA, Ill., July 6—Two fast Santa Fe Railroad streamliners—the El Capitan and the Kansas City Chief—collided near here today and authorities said at least 10 passengers were killed.

The dead included eight men and two women, and officials said that at least 75 other persons were injured. The wreck occurred at approximately 5:55 a. m. in open country, 30 miles southeast of Galesburg, Ill.

One of the fatalities was identified as Mrs. Cora Rowlins of Cleveland. She was traveling home from Los Angeles with a granddaughter, 16-year-old Dolores Keith, who planned to spend Summer vacation with Mrs. Rowlins.

The other woman fatality was believed to be from Ingleside, Cal., but she was not immediately identified. The identities of the other fatalities also have not been established.

Witnesses said the mail coach of the El Capitan suddenly left the rails and swerved into the Chief. At least five of the coaches were telescoped.

A SPOKESMAN for the Santa Fe in Chillicothe, Ill., near Monica, said the El Capitan was running on the regular eastbound track and that the Chief was traveling eastward on the westbound line under automatic control.

Mark Friess, in charge of the El Capitan mail car, said the train was traveling "normally when apparently something went wrong under the mail car."

Friess said:

"We swerved and seemed to sail through the air to the left. We hit the locomotive and first car of the Chief."

Rescuers said they found the bodies of four men in a washroom on a coach of the El Captan.

Fifteen of the 19 cars of the Los Angeles - to - Chicago El Capitan left the rails. Some of the cars overturned.

The diesel locomotive and two cars of the Chief were derailed.

Charles Hoyt, fire chief in Chillicothe said that three bodies had been removed from the wreckage.

PMA SETS UP SCHEDULE

1950-Crop Wheat Loan Rate Set Here At $2.12

A basic loan rate for 1950-crop wheat produced in Pickaway County of $2.12 per bushel was announced Thursday by the Production and Marketing Administration county committee. Last year's rate was $2.08 per bushel.

The basic rate applies to wheat grading U. S. No. 1, John Boggs, committee chairman, pointed out.

Wheat produced on farms cooperating in the 1950 Wheat Acreage Allotment program grading No. 3 or better, or No. 4 or No. 5 because of test weight or because it contains wheat of the classes durum and-or red durum, will be eligible for Commodity Credit Corporation loan or purchase agreement. HE SAID THE device measures infinitesimal electric currents to provide clues to hidden causes of misbehavior in problem children.

Explaining the "dead pan" reaction, Dr. Higley said that 85 percent of this type of youth tested had spent time in disciplinary and penal institutions.

Electrodes are taped to the fingers and the recorder detects minute changes in the electric conductivity of the skin.

The equipment notes the reaction of the subjects to pictures which are flashed on a screen.

Dr. Higley said the pictures used portray environment, domestic situations and other stimuli designed to induce emotional reaction. He said that research currently is underway to determine the relationship between the "dead pan" type of reaction and later mental disorders.

The recorder was developed several years ago by the GE general engineering and consulting laboratory in Schenectady, N. Y.

CINCINNATI, July 6—A comic book caused the death of a 13-year-old boy.

Lt. Ray Eagle, of the Cincinnati Life-Saving Squad, reported that Raymond McCall Jr. was suffocated when he lowered himself into an abandoned well to recover the book.

Carl Sheppard, 14, McCall's companion, ran to a nearby plant to get help when he saw Raymond keel over. A worker risked death himself to enter the well and lift out McCall's body, but the rescue squad was unable to revive the lad.

Couple Of Nice Days Due State, Weatherman Says

A couple of fair, less humid days were promised Ohioans Thursday by the weatherman.

The forecaster reported that the rain belt which hovered over the state for the last few days passed eastward to the Atlantic coast after dropping a few showers on Southeastern Ohio early Thursday.

"The next two days should be fair, less humid and generally pleasant throughout the state," he said, "with high temperatures between 75 and 85 both days. The higher marks will be in the south."

The mercury will drop into the 50s Thursday night, the forecaster said.

A flash flood swept a stream of water more than a foot deep through 25 to 30 homes in Lancaster Wednesday. However, the water receded by nightfall after three families had been forced to evacuate their homes.

THE COLUMBUS weather bureau reported that the first half of the week ending July 4th was cool with three nights having temperatures of 50 degrees or lower in northern and central counties. Fast Flyers Tangled In Illinois

Santa Fe Units Are Telescoped

MONICA, Ill., July 6—Two fast Santa Fe Railroad streamliners—the El Capitan and the Kansas City Chief—collided near here today and authorities said at least 10 passengers were killed.

The dead included eight men and two women, and officials said that at least 75 other persons were injured. The wreck occurred at approximately 5:55 a. m. in open country, 30 miles southeast of Galesburg, Ill.

One of the fatalities was identified as Mrs. Cora Rowlins of Cleveland. She was traveling home from Los Angeles with a granddaughter, 16-year-old Dolores Keith, who planned to spend Summer vacation with Mrs. Rowlins.

The other woman fatality was believed to be from Ingleside, Cal., but she was not immediately identified. The identities of the other fatalities also have not been established.

Witnesses said the mail coach of the El Capitan suddenly left the rails and swerved into the Chief. At least five of the coaches were telescoped.

A SPOKESMAN for the Santa Fe in Chillicothe, Ill., near Monica, said the El Capitan was running on the regular eastbound track and that the Chief was traveling eastward on the westbound line under automatic control.

Mark Friess, in charge of the El Capitan mail car, said the train was traveling "normally when apparently something went wrong under the mail car."

Friess said:

"We swerved and seemed to sail through the air to the left. We hit the locomotive and first car of the Chief."

Rescuers said they found the bodies of four men in a washroom on a coach of the El Captan.

Fifteen of the 19 cars of the Los Angeles - to - Chicago El Capitan left the rails. Some of the cars overturned.

The diesel locomotive and two cars of the Chief were derailed.

Charles Hoyt, fire chief in Chillicothe said that three bodies had been removed from the wreckage.

Clark Wissen, chief clerk for the Santa Fe in Chillicothe, reported that "some persons"

One of the passengers on the Chief was Don Evans, news editor of the weekly Kansas City Star.

"The engineer put on the emergency brake. The Chief was going 60 to 70 miles an hour."

The injured were removed from the derailed cars by rescue workers, including the dining car crew of the El Capitan. They were laid in farm fields near the tracks or carried on improvised stretchers to farm houses.

Farmers joined the rescue workers. They used axes to tear holes in the sides of the cars to reach some of the injured.

Ambulances from nearby hospitals raced to the scene.

A. C. Green, news agent on the El Capitan, said he saw two persons pinned beneath one of the overturned cars. These included the known dead. Green lives in Long Beach, Cal.

The El Capitan is an all-coach train. The Chief is a coach and pullman train.

Rescue workers said the tracks were torn up for several hundred yards.

1950-Crop Wheat Loan Rate Set Here At $2.12

rate of $1.05 a bushel was announced. Rates by counties will be announced at a later date. The final rate for the non-commercial corn area will be 75 percent of the commercial area rate.

If the loan rate for corn had been computed on the basis of May 15 parity, the rate for the commercial corn area would average about $1.43 a bushel. Price support for the 1949 crop now being marketed averages $1.40 a bushel nationally.

AGRICULTURE officials have said there would be no marketing quotas for 1950-crop corn, but that acreages allotments would apply to the commercial corn areas as a condition for price support.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 provides a 90 percent of parity rate for all producers in the commercial corn area who comply with acreage allotments. For producers outside the commercial corn area, where there are no acreage allotments, the Act provides for a rate which will be 75 percent of the commercial corn area rate.

Price support will be implemented through loans and purchase agreements, available to producers from time of harvest through May 31, 1951.

General Level Farm Prices Drops Slightly

COLUMBUS, July 6—The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service reported today that the general level of prices received by Ohio farmers dropped slightly in the month ended June 15.

Declines in prices received for chickens, milk, butterfat, veal calves, sheep, wheat and hay more than offset other increases, the service reported. In all, prices were down about three percent from levels of a year ago.

Wheat prices declined from $2.08 in mid-May to $1.89. Corn remained at $1.38 a bushel, 16 cents above a year ago. Oats, at 85 cents, were two cents up from mid-May and 18 cents higher than a year ago.

Meat animals averaged an increase of two percent in the month, with beef and lambs up 80 cents a hundred since mid-May to reach the high point since the Fall of 1948. Hogs were up ten cents to $19, but veal calves declined 10 cents and sheep 20 cents.

Dairy products were down two percent in the month to about the same level of a year ago. Chickens were two cents down from mid-May and six cents under a year ago. Eggs remained at 27.5 cents for the month, but were 16.5 cents under a year ago.

First Peach Pick Claimed

Henry Mader of Pinckney street has gone out on the limb —literally, that is.

His claim to owning this area's first peach tree to bear fuzzy, fully-ripened fruit may be challenged, he admits.

First picking of the peaches, variety unknown, was reported Monday. "Could have picked earlier," said Mader, "that tree has been ready for some time."

Red Gains Are Costly

with knocking out 25 to 35 Soviet-made North Korean tanks. A field headquarters spokesman said this comprised about half the estimated 50 to 70 tanks the Communists moved across the Han river to power their drive.

MacArthur in his communique said:

"The U. S. troops withdrew after the action to a rendezvous for regrouping and reorganization."

In withdrawing, the stubborn Yank shock troops exacted a steep price from the Red invaders for each step of the enemy's advance which picked up 15 miles Thursday and now has surged some 87 miles south of the 38th Parallel.

American planes delivered destructive new blows against the enemy with B-29 Superforts again smashing at Communist bases in North Korea.

Railroad bridges were smashed at Pyongyang, the Red capital, and at Kanko and Shinashu. The airfield at Wonsan also was heavily bombed in a move to cut off air support for the invasion forces. Fighter planes flew 81 sorties and struck at railroads and trucks.

NORTH KOREAN fliers, striving to escape the sharp-shooting American anti-aircraft gunners and fighter planes, were reported by the communique to have resorted to the deceit of using South Korean markings on their planes.

South Korean defenders, MacArthur reported, still hold the city of Chungju, 51 miles northeast of Taejon, and Chechon, 78 miles southeast of the Red-occupied capital of Seoul.

In reporting the reorganization of American troops, the communique added that the South Korean forces, previously disorganized by enemy tank onslaughts, are "reorganizing and regrouping in their new positions."

tion of the lake. The new line will be lying under about 20 feet of water and will be anchored by concrete weights.

Officials in the state Department of Natural Resources earlier stated that the pipeline operation was the "last hitch" in the much-postponed lake filling project.

The officials said that the gates will be closed for filling "as soon as the pipeline is taken care of."

However, the lake is not expected to be stocked with fish before late Fall or Spring because of the hazard of shipping during hot weather.

Plans are being completed to lay out the recreation areas and arrange for roadways.

corner of the state. Showers were general over Ohio during the 72-hour period ending Wednesday morning. The rainfall during this period averaged .88 of an inch for 16 stations reporting with amounts ranging from .18 inch in Napoleon to 2.60 inches in Marion.

One observor in Union County reported that showers beginning June 24 were "life savers" and all crops made definite improvement as a result.

The bureau reported that wheat was ripening in northern counties while some had been cut in the southern half of the state. The growth of corn was retarded somewhat by cool nights.

The forepart of the week was favorable for making hay and pastures were good. Although oats were heading on short straw, the stands were thick. Early raspberries were on the market and tobacco was about all planted in the Dayton area. A few early tomatoes were ripening.

State Agent Deputized In Pettibone Tiff

CLEVELAND, July 6—An undercover state liquor agent has been deputized by Geauga County Sheriff Stuart Harland to help roundup eight men indicted in the Pettibone Club investigation.

Common Pleas Judge William K. Thomas late yesterday called in Sheriff Harland and asked him to deputize the agent after conferring with State Liquor Enforcement Chief Anthony A. Rutkowski, who is responsible for the closing of the notorious Geauga County gambling spot.

So far, only one of the nine men sought has been arrested and he was nabbed by Rutkowski. He is Louis "Blue" Snyder, 53, a dick table stick man.

Donald Van Horn, one of the undercover men, was made a deputy sheriff of Geauga County and told to work with Cleveland detectives in searching for the eight other indicted men, all employes or officials of the Pettibone casino.

Sheriff Angry; He's Nursing Poison Ivy Vine

Sheriff Charles Radcliff Thursday promised immediate reprisal when he discovered he has been lavishing care on a viper.

The "viper" is a seemingly insignificant little poison ivy vine which has put a stranglehold on the sheriff's prized flower patch behind the Pickaway County courthouse.

The sheriff, once a farm lad himself, said that he has been watching over the vine with as much care as for any of his flowers.

"I didn't know what it was until this morning," the sheriff said. "I found out when someone asked me where I had picked up the ivy plant."

The sheriff said he will stamp out the threat to his patch "as soon as I get a can of gasoline." He failed to say whether he planned to burn it, more brutally, blister it to death.

At long last God renders the verdict. He reverses the judgment of men. Men may kill the body, but God renders the verdict, well done. Try to win that verdict. He shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the judgment is God's.—Deut. 1:17.

1950-Crop Wheat Loan Rate Set Here At $2.12

rate of $1.05 a bushel was announced. Rates by counties will be announced at a later date. The final rate for the non-commercial corn area will be 75 percent of the commercial area rate.

If the loan rate for corn had been computed on the basis of May 15 parity, the rate for the commercial corn area would average about $1.43 a bushel. Price support for the 1949 crop now being marketed averages $1.40 a bushel nationally.

AGRICULTURE officials have said there would be no marketing quotas for 1950-crop corn, but that acreages allotments would apply to the commercial corn areas as a condition for price support.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 provides a 90 percent of parity rate for all producers in the commercial corn area who comply with acreage allotments. For producers outside the commercial corn area, where there are no acreage allotments, the Act provides for a rate which will be 75 percent of the commercial corn area rate.

Price support will be implemented through loans and purchase agreements, available to producers from time of harvest through May 31, 1951.

General Level Farm Prices Drops Slightly

COLUMBUS, July 6—The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service reported today that the general level of prices received by Ohio farmers dropped slightly in the month ended June 15.

Declines in prices received for chickens, milk, butterfat, veal calves, sheep, wheat and hay more than offset other increases, the service reported. In all, prices were down about three percent from levels of a year ago.

Wheat prices declined from $2.08 in mid-May to $1.89. Corn remained at $1.38 a bushel, 16 cents above a year ago. Oats, at 85 cents, were two cents up from mid-May and 18 cents higher than a year ago.

Meat animals averaged an increase of two percent in the month, with beef and lambs up 80 cents a hundred since mid-May to reach the high point since the Fall of 1948. Hogs were up ten cents to $19, but veal calves declined 10 cents and sheep 20 cents.

Dairy products were down two percent in the month to about the same level of a year ago. Chickens were two cents down from mid-May and six cents under a year ago. Eggs remained at 27.5 cents for the month, but were 16.5 cents under a year ago.

First Peach Pick Claimed

Henry Mader of Pinckney street has gone out on the limb—literally, that is.

His claim to owning this area's first peach tree to bear fuzzy, fully-ripened fruit may be challenged, he admits.

First picking of the peaches, variety unknown, was reported Monday. "Could have picked earlier," said Mader, "that tree has been ready for some time."

Clothesline Stripper Sought

Circleville police Thursday were hunting a thief who stripped an East Mound street clothesline last night.

Mrs. Melvin Dresbach of 412 East Mound street told police Thursday that someone had stolen 11 garments from the line late Wednesday. Most of the garments, she said, were women's apparel.

with knocking out 25 to 35 Soviet-made North Korean tanks. A field headquarters spokesman said this comprised about half the estimated 50 to 70 tanks the Communists moved across the Han river to power their drive.

MacArthur in his communique said:

"The U. S. troops withdrew after the action to a rendezvous for regrouping and reorganization."

In withdrawing, the stubborn Yank shock troops exacted a steep price from the Red invaders for each step of the enemy's advance which picked up 15 miles Thursday and now has surged some 87 miles south of the 38th Parallel.

American planes delivered destructive new blows against the enemy with B-29 Superforts again smashing at Communist bases in North Korea.

Railroad bridges were smashed at Pyongyang, the Red capital, and at Kanko and Shinashu. The airfield at Wonsan also was heavily bombed in a move to cut off air support for the invasion forces. Fighter planes flew 81 sorties and struck at railroads and trucks.

NORTH KOREAN fliers, striving to escape the sharp-shooting American anti-aircraft gunners and fighter planes, were reported by the communique to have resorted to the deceit of using South Korean markings on their planes.

South Korean defenders, MacArthur reported, still hold the city of Chungju, 51 miles northeast of Taejon, and Chechon, 78 miles southeast of the Red-occupied capital of Seoul.

In reporting the reorganization of American troops, the communique added that the South Korean forces, previously disorganized by enemy tank onslaughts, are "reorganizing and regrouping in their new positions."

tion of the lake. The new line will be lying under about 20 feet of water and will be anchored by concrete weights.

Officials in the state Department of Natural Resources earlier stated that the pipeline operation was the "last hitch" in the much-postponed lake filling project.

The officials said that the gates will be closed for filling "as soon as the pipeline is taken care of."

However, the lake is not expected to be stocked with fish before late Fall or Spring because of the hazard of shipping during hot weather.

Plans are being completed to lay out the recreation areas and arrange for roadways.

Storm Sewer Building Starts

Construction of a 30-inch outlet for a storm sewer draining Circleville's east end was begun Thursday, according to Service Director John Neuding.

Need for the new outlet was discovered last year when storm water backed up in the sewer and caused several caveins. The sewer drains into Hargus Creek.

Neuding said the new outlet will be about 290 feet long. Installation is expected to be finished in about two weeks, he added.

corner of the state. Showers were general over Ohio during the 72-hour period ending Wednesday morning. The rainfall during this period averaged .88 of an inch for 16 stations reporting with amounts ranging from .18 inch in Napoleon to 2.60 inches in Marion.

One observor in Union County reported that showers beginning June 24 were "life savers" and all crops made definite improvement as a result.

The bureau reported that wheat was ripening in northern counties while some had been cut in the southern half of the state. The growth of corn was retarded somewhat by cool nights.

The forepart of the week was favorable for making hay and pastures were good. Although oats were heading on short straw, the stands were thick. Early raspberries were on the market and tobacco was about all planted in the Dayton area. A few early tomatoes were ripening.

State Agent Deputized In Pettibone Tiff

CLEVELAND, July 6—An undercover state liquor agent has been deputized by Geauga County Sheriff Stuart Harland to help roundup eight men indicted in the Pettibone Club investigation.

Common Pleas Judge William K. Thomas late yesterday called in Sheriff Harland and asked him to deputize the agent after conferring with State Liquor Enforcement Chief Anthony A. Rutkowski, who is responsible for the closing of the notorious Geauga County gambling spot.

So far, only one of the nine men sought has been arrested and he was nabbed by Rutkowski. He is Louis "Blue" Snyder, 53, a dick table stick man.

Donald Van Horn, one of the undercover men, was made a deputy sheriff of Geauga County and told to work with Cleveland detectives in searching for the eight other indicted men, all employes or officials of the Pettibone casino.

He came to Columbus from Dayton in June, 1910, to serve as chief of the division of factory and building inspection in the department of industrial relations. The body is to be returned to Dayton for funeral services.

Sheriff Angry; He's Nursing Poison Ivy Vine

Sheriff Charles Radcliff Thursday promised immediate reprisal when he discovered he has been lavishing care on a viper.

The "viper" is a seemingly insignificant little poison ivy vine which has put a stranglehold on the sheriff's prized flower patch behind the Pickaway County courthouse.

The sheriff, once a farm lad himself, said that he has been watching over the vine with as much care as for any of his flowers.

"I didn't know what it was until this morning," the sheriff said. "I found out when someone asked me where I had picked up the ivy plant."

The sheriff said he will stamp out the threat to his patch "as soon as I get a can of gasoline." He failed to say whether he planned to burn it, more brutally, blister it to death.

Radcliff took the driver of the car into custody in a filling station on Route 104 west of Circleville in less than 15 minutes after the state warning.

The driver, identified as Edgar Morgan, was returned to the hospital.

Last week I discovered that a lot of people do not know what the term "deficit financing" means. Just to satisfy a curiosity I asked a number of persons about it and although some had a vaguely correct idea only a very few had a clear understanding of the term; and not more than a handful had an awareness of the full implications of a deficit financing policy in government.

Some of the people with whom I discussed it said they had been dodging the formation of a personal opinion on whether government deficit financing was good or bad because, they said, it carried only a hazy meaning in their minds.

When they'd heard the term spoken or had seen it in print they'd formed the habit, they said, of mentally "skipping" it.

Deficit financing in its simplest definition means spending money you haven't got, operating beyond your income, spending borrowed money. If you earn $300 a month and wish to spend $400 a month, you can only grant the wish by borrowing the extra $100 each month and giving the lender your IOU or your personal note, agreeing to repay the amount plus a set rate of interest. Your indebtedness mounts each month and so does your interest payments.

If you continue to borrow the $100 month after month the interest soon bites deeply into your income and the debt itself becomes bigger and bigger. The result, in time, is bankruptcy, if repayment cannot be made.

THE COURT appoints a receiver empowered to sell your property. In the resulting liquidation, your creditors usually are left holding a near-empty bag. And you wind up a pauper, your family destitute. That's deficit financing for an individual, and government deficit financing has many similarites. When permitted to continue indefinitely, it must always end in ruin.

American citizens have their whole future at stake in the issue of whether their government shall practice deficit financing in good times as well as bad. The practice already has become epidemic. Census Bureau figures published in the Congressional Quarterly show that not only has our federal government operated on borrowed money in 18 of the last 20 years but 33 of ou r48 states are being infected with the disease too. That many overspent their revenues last year.

The practice, if prolonged by the federal government, can have but one result: ruination, caused by the government finally defaulting on its securities or destroying monetary values by runaway inflation.

A reliable veteran observer in Washington made the statement recently that he was convinced influential federal government leaders now are definitely committed to a prolonged policy of deficit financing and with it, gradual inflation.

Few Americans, apparently, are aware they are paying more than five times as much in taxes today just to meet the interest payment on the national debt (caused by deficit spending) as the entire Federal government cost in the year 1915. If the national debt of $256 billion is increased by year-after-year deficit spending, the interest, along with other government costs, will finally become unbearable to taxpayers and otherwise unmanageable by fiscal manipulations.

THEN WOULD come a default on government obligations, and moans from the millions of people holding government securities; or panic inflation engineered by frightened office holders. An abrupt inflation, drastically lowering the value of the dollar, would permit a payoff on the securities but the payoff would be a mockery, a mere fraction of the securities' original value; and the value of savings, insurance, annuities, wages, pensions, etc., would sink.

The gradual inflation which is inevitable with any prolonged deficit financing brings the same end result but the damage isn't at once apparent; it sneaks up on you. Yes, "deficit financing" means trouble if long continued.

Harding College

Last week I discovered that a lot of people do not know what the term "deficit financing" means. Just to satisfy a curiosity I asked a number of persons about it and although some had a vaguely correct idea only a very few had a clear understanding of the term; and not more than a handful had an awareness of the full implications of a deficit financing policy in government.

Some of the people with whom I discussed it said they had been dodging the formation of a personal opinion on whether government deficit financing was good or bad because, they said, it carried only a hazy meaning in their minds.

When they'd heard the term spoken or had seen it in print they'd formed the habit, they said, of mentally "skipping" it.

Deficit financing in its simplest definition means spending money you haven't got, operating beyond your income, spending borrowed money. If you earn $300 a month and wish to spend $400 a month, you can only grant the wish by borrowing the extra $100 each month and giving the lender your IOU or your personal note, agreeing to repay the amount plus a set rate of interest. Your indebtedness mounts each month and so does your interest payments.

If you continue to borrow the $100 month after month the interest soon bites deeply into your income and the debt itself becomes bigger and bigger. The result, in time, is bankruptcy, if repayment cannot be made.

THE COURT appoints a receiver empowered to sell your property. In the resulting liquidation, your creditors usually are left holding a near-empty bag. And you wind up a pauper, your family destitute. That's deficit financing for an individual, and government deficit financing has many similarites. When permitted to continue indefinitely, it must always end in ruin.

American citizens have their whole future at stake in the issue of whether their government shall practice deficit financing in good times as well as bad. The practice already has become epidemic. Census Bureau figures published in the Congressional Quarterly show that not only has our federal government operated on borrowed money in 18 of the last 20 years but 33 of ou r48 states are being infected with the disease too. That many overspent their revenues last year.

The practice, if prolonged by the federal government, can have but one result: ruination, caused by the government finally defaulting on its securities or destroying monetary values by runaway inflation.

A reliable veteran observer in Washington made the statement recently that he was convinced influential federal government leaders now are definitely committed to a prolonged policy of deficit financing and with it, gradual inflation.

Few Americans, apparently, are aware they are paying more than five times as much in taxes today just to meet the interest payment on the national debt (caused by deficit spending) as the entire Federal government cost in the year 1915. If the national debt of $256 billion is increased by year-after-year deficit spending, the interest, along with other government costs, will finally become unbearable to taxpayers and otherwise unmanageable by fiscal manipulations.

THEN WOULD come a default on government obligations, and moans from the millions of people holding government securities; cr panic inflation engineered by frightened office holders. An abrupt inflation, drastically lowering the value of the dollar, would permit a payoff on the securities but the payoff would be a mockery, a mere fraction of the securities' original value; and the value of savings, insurance, annuities, wages, pensions, etc., would sink.

The gradual inflation which is inevitable with any prolonged deficit financing brings the same end result but the damage isn't at once apparent; it sneaks up on you. Yes, "deficit financing" means trouble if long continued.

Dutch Farmers Discover Yankees To Aid Methods

COLUMBUS, July 6 — Dutch farmers can produce food with less labor and lower costs by studying American farming methods a spokesman for 55,000 Netherlands farmers said here today.

Everhard Kuylman, national secretary of the Royal Netherlands Agricultural Committee, praised the Marshall Plan assistance that has made it possible for young Dutch farmers to spend several months on United States farms.

These Dutch farmers, such as the eight that worked with Ohio farmers last year, and the four on Ohio farms this year, are quick to tell of their experiences with American methods. Kuylman reported that they have given many talks, written newspaper articles and made radio broadcasts after returning to Holland.

He says that not only are Dutch farmers learning how to use modern machinery through this training program, but considerable progress is being made toward a better international understanding.

"When our young men come to America," he declared, "they find that most Americans do not have a feeling of superiority."

Kuylman is in America as a delegate to the International "Open House" for Rural Youth Leaders, sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture.

MARSHALL PLANS funds furnished through the Economic Cooperation Administration are being used to finance the travel within this country of delegates from eight countries.

He would like to see more young Americans coming to visit Holland. During the last three years, 80 Dutch farmers have visited this country, but only five American youth have worked on and studied farm life in Holland.

While in America, Kuylman wants to find out what makes the 4-H clubs function successfully as a national organization. In Holland, most farm, industrial and labor groups are organized on a basis of religious preference. This has resulted in three separate groups at all levels of society—Protestant, Roman Catholic, and non-sectarian. Kuylman represents the non-sectarian agricultural organization.

Organizational work with farm youth begins at age 16 in Holland and continues until 30. Since 4-H enrollment begins at 10 in the United States, Kuylman hopes to evaluate the desirability of working with younger people.

He is also interested in learning how to develop agricultural and home economics projects for Dutch farm youth. At present, most of the activity in young people's club is directed toward discussion groups and recreation.

Kuylman was born in Indonesia and moved to Holland when six years of age. He holds a master of law degree from the University of Utrecht, and was employed by the Netherlands Department of Agriculture for 10 years. There he helped develop laws relating to agriculture. He served in the department's food division during the war and German occupation, and since the war has been employed by the Royal Netherlands Agricultural Committee.

He will spend three weeks in Ohio studying youth organizations at both state, county and local club levels.

Phone Company Hike Clouded In PUCO Parley

COLUMBUS, July 6—At least two factors today clouded the application of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. for authority to increase rates to some 75,000 subscribers by five percent to around 110 percent.

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio took the request under advisement late yesterday afternoon following a day of cross examination of company witnesses by Columbus Attorney John Robert Jones and Bryan Attorney C. L. Newcomber.

However, the case may be reopened if the company and municipalities protesting the proposed increase cannot agree on a company exhibit on property valuations introduced yesterday.

Two cases now before the state supreme court also may affect the outcome of the request by Ohio Associated—largest of the state's independent telephone companies.

Financial Consultant Albert W. Kimber of Washington, D.C., told the commission yesterday afternoon that the company will go bankrupt within a year if it continues to operate on present rates. He said that at the end of the first five months of 1950, Ohio Associated had only about $70,800 with which to pay fixed charges which already amounted to around $70,000.

The company's financial expert explained that this left little or nothing with which to pay dividends on preferred and common stock—an unhealthy condition for any company.

REMEMBER FOURTH'S MEANING

Say A Few Kind Words For Good Old Uncle Sam

BY INEZ ROBB
INS Staff Writer

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 6—Pardon me while I mount my portable soap-box for a few brief remarks on this auspicious occasion.

The Fourth of July was made for soap boxes and unabashed national sentiment. It grieves me that in so many American communities the voice of the patriotic orator on the grand and glorious Fourth was no longer heard in the land.

On this day, which is indeed grand and glorious, we Americans—without apology—can admit that for decades we have been carrying on a passionate love affair with this, our own, our native or our adopted land.

This is the grand and glorious day on which we are entitled to sit up and think well of our country, our institutions and even of ourselves. This is the day on which it will do no harm, in the phraseology of Bernard M. Baruch, to "say a few kind words for Uncle Sam."

Let us throw out our collective chests, including Jane Russell's and Mae West's, and realize that the United States and its peoples are darn nice, by and large.

This was as fateful a Fourth as any the nation has known since that first in 1776. We rang a bell that day—a bell heard round the world as surely as the volley at Lexington—and we rang it in the name of liberty and freedom.

Cock your ear into the wind, and you will catch the clear, vibrant, vital pealing of that bell today, as strong, as joyous and as full of promise as in '76. Even the drone of Yak fighters cannot drown out its sweet, strong message of liberty over Korea today.

THE DECLARATION of Independence, published July 4, 1776, and one of the noblest state papers in all history, gave to men everywhere dazzling promise that has since become the fundamental credo and political goal of free men everywhere:

"We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Name one sentence from the Communist manifesto for which so many men have willingly—and note that word "willingly"—been ready to fight and die!

On that first Fourth, the founding fathers gave the world a vision and a goal which it has never lost and which today is more precious than ever.

In the last ten days, it has been necessary for the free nations of the world to stand up and be counted.

They have taken their stand beside us, not because we coerced, menaced or threatened. The cynic may say they have taken their stand out of self-interest, fear of Communist aggression, or a hundred other sardonic reasons.

We have often, as a nation, been accused of grubbing for money. But the truth is that in any other nation, north, south, east and west, men will fight twice as hard for a little scratch as in America.

Let us—and the world—face the fact that "easy come, easy go" is a national trait and a world windfall. No nation, since the dawn of history, has ever given away, loaned or helped so many other nations with such vast treasure.

LET CYNICS everywhere blush to say that America has done it only out of self-interest. Let us not be boastful or purse proud ourselves. Let us be humble, but glad to have had such bounty to give. The peoples of America have voted the moneys more often because their hearts were touched than their heads warned by world events.

As we celebrated the Fourth, there were no men in concentration camps and no slave laborers in this great land of free peoples.

And now, as I pack away my soap box for another year, let us look up at the Stars and Stripes and be unafraid and unashamed to say what is in our hearts: That it is the most beautiful sight under the shining canopy of heaven.

Lightning Kills Trio At Picnic

HAMDEN, Conn., July 6—A lightning bolt which struck as a family group was singing "Happy Birthday to You" in an outdoor picnic yesterday killed three persons and injured seven.

The bolt, last of a mild storm, hit a front yard maple tree and leaped down an old tethering chain pointed directly at the family birthday party at an outdoor table.

Permit Held Up

Twenty-day suspension of its permit was meted out Thursday by the state liquor board to the Stag Bar at 106 East Main street, Circleville, owned by George E. Grubb. He was charged with exhibiting gambling devices.

ISOLATING FORMOSA

SPECULATION on the effects of the decision to prevent Communist occupation of the island of Formosa is an important element in appraising the new United States policy in the Far East. The simple move of joining the military defense of Korea required a complete new policy for the entire area, since past policy has been based on a principle of avoiding military involvement. The inclusion of plans for Formosa in the announcement of the Korean decision indicates that the new direction of American policy has been fairly well outlined in the minds of the policy makers.

The protection of Formosa is not a simple matter of opposing Communist expansion. It includes also the prevention of further harassment of the Communist mainland area by Nationalist forces on Formosa. The United States thus undertakes to freeze the Chinese civil war in its present situation with regard to the holding of land areas. The President declared that the future status of Formosa remains to be determined by the United Nations or some lesser international instrument. Meanwhile Formosa is to be forcibly isolated from the rest of China.

This plan for Formosa, together with the limitation that American action in Korea will be restricted to driving the invaders back, places the United States more in the role of a police officer on behalf of the United Nations than in that of a partisan. On this basis support was quickly attracted from several other powers having military forces in Asia and the Southwest Pacific. Thus an international military force is actually being built up in this area, committed to enforcement of United Nations decisions. This might provide the ramrod which has been so desperately needed for the backbone of the United Nations. The possibility is well worth the risks involved.

HOSPITALS AND NURSES

AN EASTERN graduate nurse with a salary of $2,400 found herself at the end of the year with just $6.11 left. Necessary expenses had used up all the rest. Not only that, but she cannot hope to rise much beyond that salary point. After twenty years of work she will be getting less than $2,900. Can the hospitals hope to continue getting skilled nurses?

"We have no more money," say the hospital directors, in words recalling the protests of business executives confronted with demands for increased pay. Hospitals are, it is true, subject to chronic deficits, but it will be hard to convince the nurses that they should carry the institutions on their shoulders.

Other professional women are not much if any better off, both nurses and directors admit. What is the remedy?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The final product of World War II has not been peace nor even the elimination of totalitarianism. Hitler and Mussolini, as individuals, were removed, but the concept of despotism remained in even a more effective form. The totalitarian state not only continued to exist but expanded its geographical extent and its control over the lives of human beings.

The final product of World War II has been the formation of two empires: One a contiguous land mass, moving out of the heartland of the Eurasian continent; the other, a congeries of free peoples, geographically diffuse, widely scattered, depending upon sea and air for communications.

The land empire is, of course, the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics, mothered by Soviet Russia and stretching from the river Elbe in Europe to the Pacific ocean and from the Arctic to a line that zigzags between the 30th and 40th Parallels. It is probably the largest empire that has ever been formed in human history both in extent and in manpower and it has not yet been required to cross a major water barrier.

The process of forming this empire has been clearly patterned for about 30 years and it has been impossible to understand why myopic statesmen did not recognize it. For it is so simple. The steps are:

1. Whenever a people are suffering social or economic distress, a vast propagandistic apparatus is placed in their midst, the primary object of which is to destroy their reliance upon their customary traditions and habits of life;

2. This is supplemented by a tremendous effort to fragmentize the population, as for instance, the wholly false emphasis upon class, racial and religious consciousness and antagonisms. By persistent efforts in this direction, by actually stimulating hatreds, by fighting off intensive patriotism, they keep a nation in turmoil over false issues.

3. To accomplish the above purposes, they use not only, in each country, the indigenous Communist Party, but also large numbers of non-Communists and even anti-Communists who join them on particular issues. The use of anti-Semitism and the Negro issue in the United States, and fear of a revival of Nazism in Europe, greatly strengthened their forces.

By the most ingenious devices, they have kept these and similar issues alive, making certain phrases "good words," and others "bad words," and always identifying their opponents with the bad words. It is surprising how successful they have been in the identification of individuals and issues with "bad words."

Patriotism has, in the United States, been made a "bad word." Business, which is the life-blood of the United States, has been identified with everything wicked, a view which has gained common acceptance.

SAVING PENCILS

GOOD NEWS, Mr. Taxpayer! The economy movement has penetrated the federal government. The Library of Congress is saving pencil stubs, and so far has accumulated 168. It is true that an elaborate routine for their orderly routing from the subordinates desk to the desk of the supervisor bids fair to be more expensive than any money which pencil-saving could hope to bring in. That makes little real difference, however; the mood to save is what counts.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Danger Signal to Watch For

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MOST women do not realize that secretion from the breast is possible at any time of life from a few days after birth up until old age. Thus, if anything of the kind is observed they are likely to become panicky for fear that something is seriously amiss, and sometimes there may be.

During the maturing period or adolescence, the breasts often become swollen and may have a milky discharge. Again, it is natural that women who have had children should have some secretion from the breasts now and again. Throughout adult life and even in old age, the cells in the breasts break down and may be discharged in the form of a secretion.

Danger Signs

However, such secretions can also be danger signs of disease. Bloody, watery, or pus-containing secretions are the ones to be watched as they may indicate the presence of infection, a cyst, or some more harmful tumor growth.

In order to determine the nature of the discharge from the breast, it should be examined under the microscope, as well as chemically.

The source of the discharge from the breast can be ascertained if each part of the breast is massaged gently towards the nipple. If no tumor or swelling in the breast can be found by the doctor, the condition causing the abnormal discharge is usually not a serious one.

Disturbing Sign

Blood in the discharge from the nipple is a disturbing sign. It may be caused by inflammation, due to such conditions as syphilis, tuberculosis or other infections, or some type of cancer. Examination of the discharge from the breast is often helpful in making a diagnosis of breast cancer.

It is suggested by doctors that any tumor which has been felt in the breast should be removed regardless of its size, for study under the microscope, to determine its exact nature.

Of course, any discharge from the breast should be investigated so as to make sure that it is not caused by disease.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN ANCHOR TO WINDWARD

HAVING a second suit which you can bid if the opponents double your first one is like haying an anchor to windward. Unless all the probabilities are haywire, it doesn't stand to reason that they can punish you equally in either suit. You have two chances to find some kind of a fit with your partner, and generally locate at least a partial one if you try naming both of your suits. On many occasions, the bidding of one suit is sound only because you stand ready to show the other if you are doubled for business.

East's overcall when vulnerable was risky, any way you consider it. But it had no sense to it unless he was prepared to bid his diamonds in case he was doubled. Reflecting upon the vulnerability, he feared going to the level of three, which would have been necessary to show the other red suit. His pass of the double proved a bonanza for his opponents.

The spade J won the opening lead, the K was ruffed and over-ruffed by the heart 3 and 4, the club 9 was led to the K and A, spade Q ruffed and over-ruffed by the heart 5 and 7, club 3 led to the J, spade A ruffed and over-ruffed by the heart 9 and J, the last two trumps of East removed by the K and A, the club 3 led for a marked finesse of the 8, followed by the A and good spades, the last of which had to be ruffed by the final trump, the 2.

Thus the defenders scored a defensive grand slam doubled, worth 2300 points.

Note that, if East had bid 3-Diamonds and got doubled, he could have been beaten only one or two tricks, perhaps losing just one trick each in spades, hearts and diamonds plus two in clubs. Compare that with the ice-cold small slam available to North-South in spades, and you will see what the bid would have saved East—if the opponents doubled his diamonds.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

MARYBELLE'S face in the starshine had none of the roguishness, the sensuality. She might have been his mother and he a recalcitrant child. Sternness drew her lips firm, and her eyes had the same chill he'd seen in Cory Lund's in Tamerlane. She said, "Is he to die while we ride around in circles?"

Brian Ives listened hard for the sound; he thought he heard it again, but it was only the ghost of sound; it defied capture like a handful of smoke. He shrugged. "Perhaps you're right."

She said peremptorily, "Come along," not waiting for his acquiescence; and he wondered if her wilfulness was made of the moment or if it lay deep within her always, needing only something like this to bring it forth. He thought to himself that her man would never have to worry about the decisions; she would make them for him. Yet her steel might be the saving of Cory Lund, and he had to admire it. He could remember no woman who had ever been really concerned about Brian Ives, and for a moment he was jealous.

They rode onward; to Ives it became a blind game of follow-the-leader; he was vaguely conscious of the river to his left and the high lift of the hills ahead, but the world had really narrowed to the horse and rider before him. Starshine reflected from the mount's glossy rump. Sometimes he tried to get stirrup to stirrup with Marybelle, but he found this futile. No words passed between them; there was no time for words. He wanted to ask the exact nature of Cory's wound, but he let this wait.

After hours he saw lights twinkling, the yellow pinpoints of kerosene lamps in unshaded windows; and this surprised him. He raked up all his memories of this land and couldn't account for the lights; by his calculations Hammer lay almost due east of them now, and the other cattle ranches were across the river. Then he remembered the homesteaders and realized he and Marybelle were flanking the settlement that had grown along the upper Sombra. A dog barked at them, and the sound held a strange comfort. The night lost its vastness and its mystery; people were near.

Once they rested their horses so close to a tar-papered shack that Ives could see into the window. A gaunt man passed back and forth, lost to sight and appearing again, like some mechanical man, wound up and set to this definite to-and-fro motion. Some instinct of his profession gave Ives an answer to the riddle of the sleepless man. There was sickness here; there was a shadow upon the shack. He asked a question.

"This is Jensen's place," Marybelle said. "Their child's been ailing."

They lifted to a gallop again. They passed other shacks; there was a likeness to them, each was blank with the blight of poverty, each was a monument to dogged perseverance; and Ives found mockery in the thought that such flimsiness was the stronghold against which Colonel Carradine pitted himself. Soon they had to slow to a walk; they had left the homesteads behind, and the way was lifting upward, and stunted trees began to show themselves, and then they went into deeper timber. Sometimes they had to dismount and lead their horses. Ives shifted his balance to the stars and was surprised to find it no later than it was.

Marybelle said, "It's not much farther."

The shack lay back in screening timber, and they didn't see the light until they were almost upon the place; and Marybelle, back in her saddle again, reined short then and reached her hand to Ives' arm. She said, "I left no light!" and fear was in her voice, and a need for him. This was comforting, for suddenly she was a woman after all, and she was leaning upon him.

He said, "Why, this is Tom Feather's place. The old coot is probably here."

Still the fear was in her. "I wish we had a gun," she said.

"Tom wouldn't hurt a fly," he told her and jogged his horse forward.

He remembered this place; it was made of logs and was sod-roofed, and it was as old as Hammer. Carradine sometimes used it as a line-shack, but at this season it stood empty except when Tom Feather chose to hole-up here. Sometimes Feather fancied himself a prospector, and this was the base of his operations along the little streams that fed the Sombra. At least it had been that way in the old days. Ives drew up in the stump-strewn clearing before the place and called tentatively, "Tom—?"

Lamplight made a rectangle when the door opened; against the light Tom Feather stood, his wild eyes peering out from his wild tangle of whiskers like a beast's in a thicket. He shaded his eyes with both hands and said, placidly, "Oh, it's you, Jim. Come in. Come in, boy." Then, cautiously: "Who's that with you, Jim?"

"A friend," Ives said. "You got a sick fellow here, Tom?"

"He stopped lead," Feather said. "Always it's guns, eh, Jim?" Fear took hold of him, and he was a man about to run to cover; he crouched, looking to right and left. "Yo won't let them gun down Tom? You won't let them, will you, Jim?"

Ives said, "Of course not," the one word beating steadily through his brain. Jim . . . Jim . . . Feather had never called him by that name, not in all the years.

Marybelle was tying her horse to a bush. She came forward into the light; Ives took her by the elbow and steered her to the doorway, Feather falling back to let them enter. The one room of the shack held a rusty stove, two rickety chairs, a table, a bunk. Cory lay in the bunk, his eyes closed and the flush of fever upon him, his body turned slightly to favor his left arm. His sleeve had been cut away and his arm was crudely bandaged, but dried blood showed. Ives looked at him in the lamplight and said to Marybelle, "How did you find him?" Oddly he'd not wondered about that till now.

"His horse came home," Marybelle said. "The sign said it came down out of the north. I tried back-trailing it as far as I could. Rod Benedict had given up the same notion. The hill country is too rocky. But I began riding circles. It seemed to me that if a person were wounded they would try to head for some sort of shelter. This place is the only one up here."

Ives nodded. Cory's breathing was shallow, but his pulse seemed sound enough; pain had pulled his mouth out of shape. Ives removed Marybelle's bandage and looked at the wound; it was in the upper arm, and it didn't look good, and Ives' fear was that the arm might have to come off. He wondered if he should tell the girl this; he had a hunch she would take it without flinching.

He walked to the table and tested its sturdiness. He lifted the lamp to one of the chairs, and said, "Tom, give me a hand. We're going to move him to the table."

They got hold of Cory and lifted him from the bunk to the table top and spread him out, Marybelle helping. Ives said then, "I'm going after the bullet. Build up a fire in the stove. Fill everything you can find with water. There's a well out in the yard."

"Yes," she said.

"Find every piece of white cloth you can. Put them in one of the kettles to boil. Tom, there's a black case tied to my saddle. Fetch it here."

U. S. Ahead in War Planes But Lags in Transport Jobs

World Red Cross President Mum on Praise by Russkis

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The Air Force and the Navy may be developing the world's fastest fighter planes and the world's best bombers, but they are lagging far behind the British, and for that matter, our own air lines, in transport planes.

Both are still getting along with the comparative slow pre-war DC-3 and DC-4 transports. These are good, steady, reliable planes, but somewhat lacking in speed and efficient carrying power.

Paul Ruegger

The services have loudly announced development of gigantic transports, capable of flying hundreds of troops and tons of equipment, but they have purchased comparatively few—except for the Fairchild Flying Boxcars—standard transports for the Army's airborne troops. Martin, of course, has the Mars flying boat to its credit.

However, the services have nothing like such commercial transports as the DC-6, the Constellation, the Convair or the Martin 202 and 104, or the British jet transports.

The services have played around with some of the new transports, holding trials and looking at them, but so far no large orders have been forthcoming. A few Connies have been purchased, and President Truman flies an Air Force DC-6.

The Air Forces have one prime excuse—they say that Congress won't give them the money to purchase the newer planes.

● SWIVVEL-HIPPED SWISS—The International Committee of the Red Cross, made up of about 25 Swiss citizens, may have Western sympathies, but they aren't admitting it—at least not in pow-wows with democratic leaders.

Committee President Paul Ruegger made this abundantly clear when he changed pace and side-stepped like a swivvel-hipped halfback at a recent Washington news conference.

Although the Swiss leader would make no comment, it would be more than passing strange if at some time during his conversaations with State department officials there was no reference to Russia's attitude toward the Red Cross proposals for outlawing of atomic weapons.

American officials are known to have been somewhat miffed because the proposals were lauded in Izvestia, mouthpiece for the Soviet government, before they were received by the State department.

On this score Ruegger told the news conference that copies were mailed to all interested nations at the same time. Perhaps in private talks with United States officials he gave a more detailed explanation.

● MARSHALL ORDEAL—Gen. George C. Marshall indicated the other day that the long questioning he underwent in connection with the congressional Pearl Harbor investigation ranks high among the ordeals of his life.

The man who directed America's wartime Army referred to the Pearl Harbor probe in bitter terms while being questioned on China before the House foreign affairs committee. He suddenly broke in to say:

Irate Over Pearl Harbor Questioning

"I didn't have much advance notice on my trip to China. (Marshall headed a postwar presidential mission to China.) For the five or six days before I went, I was under personal investigation by a congressional committee in connection with Pearl Harbor.

"The only time I had to confer with (then) Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was the few minutes I snatched at the lunch hour. That was the only preparation I was able to get."

Reporters who covered the Pearl Harbor probe recalled that Marshall was on the witness stand for seven days and that for hours before he was excused, a plane was warmed up at National Airport ready to leave for China as soon as Marshall could get off the witness stand.

ISOLATING FORMOSA

SPECULATION on the effects of the decision to prevent Communist occupation of the island of Formosa is an important element in appraising the new United States policy in the Far East. The simple move of joining the military defense of Korea required a complete new policy for the entire area, since past policy has been based on a principle of avoiding military involvement. The inclusion of plans for Formosa in the announcement of the Korean decision indicates that the new direction of American policy has been fairly well outlined in the minds of the policy makers.

The protection of Formosa is not a simple matter of opposing Communist expansion. It includes also the prevention of further harassment of the Communist mainland area by Nationalist forces on Formosa. The United States thus undertakes to freeze the Chinese civil war in its present situation with regard to the holding of land areas. The President declared that the future status of Formosa remains to be determined by the United Nations or some lesser international instrument. Meanwhile Formosa is to be forcibly isolated from the rest of China.

This plan for Formosa, together with the limitation that American action in Korea will be restricted to driving the invaders back, places the United States more in the role of a police officer on behalf of the United Nations than in that of a partisan. On this basis support was quickly attracted from several other powers having military forces in Asia and the Southwest Pacific. Thus an international military force is actually being built up in this area, committed to enforcement of United Nations decisions. This might provide the ramrod which has been so desperately needed for the backbone of the United Nations. The possibility is well worth the risks involved.

HOSPITALS AND NURSES

AN EASTERN graduate nurse with a salary of $2,400 found herself at the end of the year with just $6.11 left. Necessary expenses had used up all the rest. Not only that, but she cannot hope to rise much beyond that salary point. After twenty years of work she will be getting less than $2,900. Can the hospitals hope to continue getting skilled nurses?

"We have no more money," say the hospital directors, in words recalling the protests of business executives confronted with demands for increased pay. Hospitals are, it is true, subject to chronic deficits, but it will be hard to convince the nurses that they should carry the institutions on their shoulders.

Other professional women are not much if any better off, both nurses and directors admit. What is the remedy?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The final product of World War II has not been peace nor even the elimination of totalitarianism. Hitler and Mussolini, as individuals, were removed, but the concept of despotism remained in even a more effective form. The totalitarian state not only continued to exist but expanded its geographical extent and its control over the lives of human beings.

The final product of World War II has been the formation of two empires: One a contiguous land mass, moving out of the heartland of the Eurasian continent; the other, a congeries of free peoples, geographically diffuse, widely scattered, depending upon sea and air for communications.

The land empire is, of course, the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics, mothered by Soviet Russia and stretching from the river Elbe in Europe to the Pacific ocean and from the Arctic to a line that zigzags between the 30th and 40th Parallels. It is probably the largest empire that has ever been formed in human history both in extent and in manpower and it has not yet been required to cross a major water barrier.

The process of forming this empire has been clearly patterned for about 30 years and it has been impossible to understand why myopic statesmen did not recognize it. For it is so simple. The steps are:

1. Whenever a people are suffering social or economic distress, a vast propagandistic apparatus is placed in their midst, the primary object of which is to destroy their reliance upon their customary traditions and habits of life;

2. This is supplemented by a tremendous effort to fragmentize the population, as for instance, the wholly false emphasis upon class, racial and religious consciousness and antagonisms. By persistent efforts in this direction, by actually stimulating hatreds, by fighting off intensive patriotism, they keep a nation in turmoil over false issues.

3. To accomplish the above purposes, they use not only, in each country, the indigenous Communist Party, but also large numbers of non-Communists and even anti-Communists who join them on particular issues. The use of anti-Semitism and the Negro issue in the United States, and fear of a revival of Nazism in Europe, greatly strengthened their forces.

By the most ingenious devices, they have kept these and similar issues alive, making certain phrases "good words," and others "bad words," and always identifying their opponents with the bad words. It is surprising how successful they have been in the identification of individuals and issues with "bad words."

Patriotism has, in the United States, been made a "bad word." Business, which is the life-blood of the United States, has been identified with everything wicked, a view which has gained common acceptance.

SAVING PENCILS

GOOD NEWS, Mr. Taxpayer! The economy movement has penetrated the federal government. The Library of Congress is saving pencil stubs, and so far has accumulated 168. It is true that an elaborate routine for their orderly routing from the subordinates desk to the desk of the supervisor bids fair to be more expensive than any money which pencil-saving could hope to bring in. That makes little real difference, however; the mood to save is what counts.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Danger Signal to Watch For

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MOST women do not realize that secretion from the breast is possible at any time of life from a few days after birth up until old age. Thus, if anything of the kind is observed they are likely to become panicky for fear that something is seriously amiss, and sometimes there may be.

During the maturing period or adolescence, the breasts often become swollen and may have a milky discharge. Again, it is natural that women who have had children should have some secretion from the breasts now and again. Throughout adult life and even in old age, the cells in the breasts break down and may be discharged in the form of a secretion.

Danger Signs

However, such secretions can also be danger signs of disease. Bloody, watery, or pus-containing secretions are the ones to be watched as they may indicate the presence of infection, a cyst, or some more harmful tumor growth.

In order to determine the nature of the discharge from the breast, it should be examined under the microscope, as well as chemically.

The source of the discharge from the breast can be ascertained if each part of the breast is massaged gently towards the nipple. If no tumor or swelling in the breast can be found by the doctor, the condition causing the abnormal discharge is usually not a serious one.

Disturbing Sign

Blood in the discharge from the nipple is a disturbing sign. It may be caused by inflammation, due to such conditions as syphilis, tuberculosis or other infections, or some type of cancer. Examination of the discharge from the breast is often helpful in making a diagnosis of breast cancer.

It is suggested by doctors that any tumor which has been felt in the breast should be removed regardless of its size, for study under the microscope, to determine its exact nature.

Of course, any discharge from the breast should be investigated so as to make sure that it is not caused by disease.

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN ANCHOR TO WINDWARD

HAVING a second suit which you can bid if the opponents double your first one is like haying an anchor to windward. Unless all the probabilities are haywire, it doesn't stand to reason that they can punish you equally in either suit. You have two chances to find some kind of a fit with your partner, and generally locate at least a partial one if you try naming both of your suits. On many occasions, the bidding of one suit is sound only because you stand ready to show the other if you are doubled for business.

Reflecting upon the vulnerability, he feared going to the level of three, which would have been necessary to show the other red suit. His pass of the double proved a bonanza for his opponents.

The spade J won the opening lead, the K was ruffed and overruffed by the heart 3 and 4, the club 9 was led to the K and A, spade Q ruffed and over-ruffed by the heart 5 and 7, club 3 led to the J, spade A ruffed and overruffed by the heart 9 and J, the last two trumps of East removed by the K and A, the club 3 led for a marked finesse of the 8, followed by the A and good spades, the last of which had to be ruffed by the final trump, the 2.

Thus the defenders scored a defensive grand slam doubled, worth 2300 points.

Note that, if East had bid 3-Diamonds and got doubled, he could have been beaten only one or two tricks, perhaps losing just one trick each in spades, hearts and diamonds plus two in clubs. Compare that with the ice-cold small slam available to North-South in spades, and you will see what the bid would have saved East—if the opponents doubled his diamonds.

Starshine reflected from the mount's glossy rump. Sometimes he tried to get stirrup to stirrup with Marybelle, but he found this futile. No words passed between them; there was no time for words. He wanted to ask the exact nature of Cory's wound, but he let this wait.

After hours he saw lights twinkling, the yellow pinpoints of kerosene lamps in unshaded windows; and this surprised him. He raked up all his memories of this land and couldn't account for the lights; by his calculations Hammer lay almost due east of them now, and the other cattle ranches were across the river. Then he remembered the homesteaders and realized he and Marybelle were flanking the settlement that had grown along the upper Sombra. A dog barked at them, and the sound held a strange comfort. The night lost its vastness and its mystery; people were near.

Once they rested their horses so close to a tar-papered shack that Ives could see into the window. A gaunt man passed back and forth, lost to sight and appearing again, like some mechanical man, wound up and set to this definite to-and-fro motion. Some instinct of his profession gave Ives an answer to the riddle of the sleepless man. There was sickness here; there was a shadow upon the shack. He asked a question.

"This is Jensen's place," Marybelle said. "Their child's been ailing."

They lifted to a gallop again. They passed other shacks; there was a likeness to them, each was blank with the blight of poverty, each was a monument to dogged perseverance; and Ives found mockery in the thought that such flimsiness was the stronghold against which Colonel Carradine pitted himself. Soon they had to slow to a walk; they had left the homesteads behind, and the way was lifting upward, and stunted trees began to show themselves, and then they went into deeper timber. Sometimes they had to dismount and lead their horses. Ives shifted his balance to the stars and was surprised to find it no later than it was.

Marybelle said, "It's not much farther."

The shack lay back in screening timber, and they didn't see the light until they were almost upon the place; and Marybelle, back in her saddle again, reined short then and reached her hand to Ives' arm. She said, "I left no light!" and fear was in her voice, and a need for him. This was comforting, for suddenly she was a woman after all, and she was leaning upon him.

He said, "Why, this is Tom Feather's place. The old coot is probably here."

Still the fear was in her. "I wish we had a gun," she said.

"Tom wouldn't hurt a fly," he told her and jogged his horse forward.

He remembered this place; it was made of logs and was sod-roofed, and it was as old as Hammer. Carradine sometimes used it as a line-shack, but at this season it stood empty except when Tom Feather chose to hole-up here. Sometimes Feather fancied himself a prospector, and this was the base of his operations along the little streams that fed the Sombra. At least it had been that way in the old days. Ives drew up in the stump-strewn clearing before the place and called tentatively, "Tom—?"

Lamplight made a rectangle when the door opened; against the light Tom Feather stood, his wild eyes peering out from his wild tangle of whiskers like a beast's in a thicket. He shaded his eyes with both hands and said, placidly, "Oh, it's you, Jim. Come in. Come in, boy." Then, cautiously: "Who's that with you, Jim?"

"A friend," Ives said. "You got a sick fellow here, Tom?"

"He stopped lead," Feather said. "Always it's guns, eh, Jim?" Fear took hold of him, and he was a man about to run to cover; he crouched, looking to right and left. "Yo won't let them gun down Tom? You won't let them, will you, Jim?"

Ives said, "Of course not," the one word beating steadily through his brain. Jim . . . Jim . . . Feather had never called him by that name, not in all the years.

Marybelle was tying her horse to a bush. She came forward into the light; Ives took her by the elbow and steered her to the doorway, Feather falling back to let them enter. The one room of the shack held a rusty stove, two rickety chairs, a table, a bunk. Cory lay in the bunk, his eyes closed and the flush of fever upon him, his body turned slightly to favor his left arm. His sleeve had been cut away and his arm was crudely bandaged, but dried blood showed. Ives looked at him in the lamplight and said to Marybelle, "How did you find him?" Oddly he'd not wondered about that till now.

"His horse came home," Marybelle said. "The sign said it came down out of the north. I tried back-trailing it as far as I could. Rod Benedict had given up the same notion. The hill country is too rocky. But I began riding circles. It seemed to me that if a person were wounded they would try to head for some sort of shelter. This place is the only one up here."

Ives nodded. Cory's breathing was shallow, but his pulse seemed sound enough; pain had pulled his mouth out of shape. Ives removed Marybelle's bandage and looked at the wound; it was in the upper arm, and it didn't look good, and Ives' fear was that the arm might have to come off. He wondered if he should tell the girl this; he had a hunch she would take it without flinching.

He walked to the table and tested its sturdiness. He lifted the lamp to one of the chairs, and said, "Tom, give me a hand. We're going to move him to the table."

They got hold of Cory and lifted him from the bunk to the table top and spread him out, Marybelle helping. Ives said then, "I'm going after the bullet. Build up a fire in the stove. Fill everything you can find with water. There's a well out in the yard."

"Yes," she said.

"Find every piece of white cloth you can. Put them in one of the kettles to boil. Tom, there's a black case tied to my saddle. Fetch it here."

U. S. Ahead in War Planes But Lags in Transport Jobs

World Red Cross President Mum on Praise by Russkis

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The Air Force and the Navy may be developing the world's fastest fighter planes and the world's best bombers, but they are lagging far behind the British, and for that matter, our own air lines, in transport planes.

Both are still getting along with the comparative slow pre-war DC-3 and DC-4 transports. These are good, steady, reliable planes, but somewhat lacking in speed and efficient carrying power.

Paul Ruegger

The services have loudly announced development of gigantic transports, capable of flying hundreds of troops and tons of equipment, but they have purchased comparatively few—except for the Fairchild Flying Boxcars—standard transports for the Army's airborne troops. Martin, of course, has the Mars flying boat to its credit.

However, the services have nothing like such commercial transports as the DC-6, the Constellation, the Convair or the Martin 202 and 104, or the British jet transports.

The services have played around with some of the new transports, holding trials and looking at them, but so far no large orders have been forthcoming. A few Connies have been purchased, and President Truman flies an Air Force DC-6.

The Air Forces have one prime excuse—they say that Congress won't give them the money to purchase the newer planes.

● SWIVVEL-HIPPED SWISS—The International Committee of the Red Cross, made up of about 25 Swiss citizens, may have Western sympathies, but they aren't admitting it—at least not in pow-wows with democratic leaders.

Committee President Paul Ruegger made this abundantly clear when he changed pace and side-stepped like a swivvel-hipped halfback at a recent Washington news conference.

Although the Swiss leader would make no comment, it would be more than passing strange if at some time during his conversaations with State department officials there was no reference to Russia's attitude toward the Red Cross proposals for outlawing of atomic weapons.

American officials are known to have been somewhat miffed because the proposals were lauded in Izvestia, mouthpiece for the Soviet government, before they were received by the State department.

On this score Ruegger told the news conference that copies were mailed to all interested nations at the same time. Perhaps in private talks with United States officials he gave a more detailed explanation.

● MARSHALL ORDEAL—Gen. George C. Marshall indicated the other day that the long questioning he underwent in connection with the congressional Pearl Harbor investigation ranks high among the ordeals of his life.

Irate Over Pearl Harbor Questioning

The man who directed America's wartime Army referred to the Pearl Harbor probe in bitter terms while being questioned on China before the House foreign affairs committee. He suddenly broke in to say:

"I didn't have much advance notice on my trip to China. (Marshall headed a postwar presidential mission to China.) For the five or six days before I went, I was under personal investigation by a congressional committee in connection with Pearl Harbor.

"The only time I had to confer with (then) Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was the few minutes I snatched at the lunch hour. That was the only preparation I was able to get."

Reporters who covered the Pearl Harbor probe recalled that Marshall was on the witness stand for seven days and that for hours before he was excused, a plane was warmed up at National Airport ready to leave for China as soon as Marshall could get off the witness stand.

More Than $30 Million Given For Polio Fight

NEW YORK, July 6—A record total of $30,783,000 was contributed last January to the 1950 March of Dimes and now is being spent at an unprecedented rate to fight polio, it was announced today by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The comparable figure last year, also a record, was $25,728,000. However, virtually all 1949 funds—plus $4 million raised in the national foundation's first emergency appeal last September — have been used to help care for 42,375 new polio patients in 1949, the largest number ever recorded in one year.

O'Connor disclosed that most of the funds spent since Jan. 1 were for 17,000 of last year's patients who need continuing assistance for care. He said that 467 of the national foundation's 2,822 local chapters already have spent all assets which remained at the end of last year and all local funds contributed during the March of Dimes this year.

The number of new cases this year, he said, is slightly ahead of the same period in 1949 as the nation nears the season when heavy incidence of polio usually occurs.

He expressed "sincere thanks" to the American people and to the thousands of volunteers throughout the country who made the drive the most outstanding in the organization's 13-year history.

HALF OF THE net total raised during the March of Dimes is used by national headquarters to support its research professional education and training programs and for a national epidemic aid fund.

The other half is retained by local chapters to pay for care of local patients or, in emergency, to supplement the national epidemic fund for speedy, effective use wherever the need dictates.

O'Connor said that emergency aid totaling $2,666,129.70 has been advanced to chapters already this year. States which have received more than $200,000 each from national headquarters include Arkansas, Michigan, Minnesota and Texas. California and Illinois have received more than $150,000 each.

The three leading states and their March of Dimes totals were New York, $3,700,000; California, $2,390,000, and Illinois, $1,850,000.

O'Connor declared that while the cost of patient care has increased "the national foundation also has stepped up to the limit of our resources the research program to find a preventive or cure for the disease.

"The result of this research, probably the most extensive voluntary program ever levelled against a single disease, is new knowledge about infantile paralysis. Scientists are more optimistic now than ever before that they are on the right track of an ultimate solution."

Hungary Eyes Anti-Commies

LONDON, July 6 — A new crackdown on Hungarian anti-Communists has been reported by the London Daily Telegraph.

In a Vienna dispatch, the newspaper said a large number of politicians who have opposed the Communist regime in Budapest have been arrested by secret police.

New Boston's Police Chief Debate Ended

PORTSMOUTH, July 6 — A two-year controversy in the appointment of a police chief in New Boston is at an end today.

Common Pleas Judge George W. McDowell of Hillsboro issued a mandamus order yesterday to force the civil service commission to certify Fred Brown, 50-year-old patrolman, as chief.

The order forced the ouster of George Elkins, 34, who has held the post since March, 1948, under a compromise.

The controversy hinged on who the high man in a civil service examination was. Brown contested the appointment of Elkins by Mayor Vernal Riffe. Judge Fred Everett of Jackson ruled that the commission had erred in certifying Elkins as high man.

Judge McDowell held that the mayor was required to appoint the top man and had no choice in appointing one of the three highest in the examinations as was previously done.

The common pleas court action also ordered New Boston to pay Elkins the chief's salary of $250 from June 6, 1949, to July 5, 1950, during which time he received only $225 as a patrolman's salary.

Of Course, She Had The Money

FAIRFAX, Va., July 6 — A couple of Virginia gunmen need another lesson as to who carries the cash in a family.

John G. Schweinkort of Eldred, Pa., and his wife were driving through Fairfax County when Schweinkort pulled off the road to sleep. His wife, sitting beside him, already was asleep.

Hardly had he stopped when a couple of young men came up to his automobile, produced guns and demanded his money. Schweinkort gave them the wallet, containing about six dollars.

His wife, who had around $300 in her purse, never awakened, and the $300 was saved.

Armed Mother Routs Prowler

CLEVELAND, July 6 — A 39-year-old east side mother fired a shot through a bedroom window screen at a prowler early today, but the man fled.

Police reported that Mrs. Emma Barber was just getting into bed when she heard footsteps on the side porch outside her window. Her daughter, Barbara, 17 months, was sleeping nearby.

Mrs. Barber turned off the bedroom light, grabbed a revolver from a drawer and told the prowler to stand where he was. When he turned to run she fired through the window. The woman told police that the man grunted as if wounded.

Area Buys Half Of Bond Quota

58 Pct. Purchased In Pickaway County

Judge William D. Radcliff, county Savings Bonds chairman, announced Thursday that Pickaway County has attained 57.8 percent of its Independence Drive quota.

County sales as of June 24, as reported by the Federal Reserve Bank, total $40,461. The local quota is $70,000.

Although Independence Day was the formal ending of the drive, purchases made after the Fourth and early enough to be processed through the Federal Reserve will be included in the drive totals. The accounting period ends July 17.

In previous drives, the period between the formal end and the close of the accounting period always has resulted in an increase in sales due to the "last-minute" buyers.

The chairman emphasized that these late sales are imperative if the county is to make its quota. He urged all issuing agents, including banks, postoffices and payroll savings plan companies to make a special effort to get sales reports in as quickly as possible.

Earlier this week it was announced in Columbus that the state has attained 58.6 percent of its $38,839,000 quota with sales of $22,791,013 as of June 24.

Missing NSLI Dividends May Need New Claim

Veterans whose application for National Service Life Insurance special dividend has been acknowledged, but who have not received checks, should contact the Veterans Administration district office in Columbus, according to James P. Shea, local veterans service officer.

He said special forms for this purpose may be obtained in his office in the basement of Pickaway Courthouse.

"If the veteran has made application, but has not received acknowledgement and the dividend application number, a duplicate application should be made," Shea continued.

He added that forms for the duplicate application can also be obtained from his office.

Army Worms Hit North Ohio

COLUMBUS, July 6 — Fifteen Ohio counties have been invaded by army worms.

T. H. Parks, extension entomologist at Ohio State university, said yesterday that the latest county to be hit is Ashtabula.

He said this indicates that the worms have followed the usual southwest to northeast migratory pattern. The wind carries the worms while they still are in the moth stage.

Parks said many corn and timothy fields were damaged by the short-lived invasion.

U.S. Move Hit

BUDAPEST, July 6—The Hungarian Communist Party organized a mass demonstration movement yesterday against United States intervention in Korea.

Ag Surpluses Here To Stay, Leader Claims

WASHINGTON, July 6 — The chief of U. S. experiment stations predicts that agricultural surpluses are here to stay.

Chief R. W. Trullinger says that "large production" and surpluses are a continuing problem "whether we like it or not."

Trullinger, who also is assistant administrator of agricultural research, says:

"Everything is geared for mass production on a big-business scale, and it would be difficult to believe that the agricultural industry of today will voluntarily revert to last-generation methods and practices.

"Efficiency is not only now of paramount importance in farming, but it may be expected that future years will intensify its need."

Trullinger says that in view of the nation's continuing tremendous production a "reasonable part" of the government's research effort will have to be devoted towards developing better distribution and marketing methods.

Trullinger adds that the American people would rather see surpluses of food and fiber—which might cause headaches—than be confronted with "terrible shortages."

The research specialist says it's possible that the U. S. may a some future time be faced with widespread crop failures. More people are being fed and clothed now in the nation than ever before and the population continues to rise.

The Diesel engine was invented by Rudolf Diesel, who patented it in 1892.

Personal
To Women With Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 16 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

First of the Fine Cars in Value

The Car that puts your Best Foot forward

We think you'll agree that the whole story of an automobile isn't told in its power, its room, its styling, even in its ride.

There is the all-important point about what a car does to you—and that's where ROADMASTER really shines.

For you can't slip into this bonny beauty's broad seats without feeling like somebody pretty special.

When you take its neat wheel in your hand—when you cut loose, with a toe-touch, the rich baritone of its big Fireball straight-eight power plant—when you feel the smooth surge of its Dynaflow-cushioned take-off—

Man, then you know you've got a real automobile!

And don't overlook this:

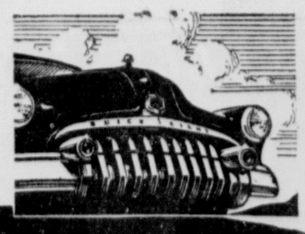
That graceful sweep of chrome along the fender—found on no other car made today—is a mighty eye-catching note of distinction.

Those four Ventiports, too, cause many a head to turn—they mark you unmistakably as the owner of the biggest and best Buick built—a car as fine and rich as any man has need for.

There are a lot of good, solid, dollars-and-cents reasons for making ROADMASTER your choice over any other car:

Its size. The commanding performance of its 152-hp Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight engine. Dynaflow Drive standard. A ride that's quite matchless in its gentle softness. Distinguished styling from bold, protective front end to gleaming "double bubble" taillight.

But if you're ready for a car that's more than just an automobile—if you want one that puts your best foot forward in any company—that's the real reason for seeing your Buick dealer quickly—to talk turkey about a ROADMASTER.



FOUR-WAY FORFRONT
This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs — vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.

Ag Surpluses Here To Stay, Leader Claims

WASHINGTON, July 6 — The chief of U. S. experiment stations predicts that agricultural surpluses are here to stay.

Chief R. W. Trullinger says that "large production" and surpluses are a continuing problem "whether we like it or not."

Trullinger, who also is assistant administrator of agricultural research, says:

"Everything is geared for mass production on a big-business scale, and it would be difficult to believe that the agricultural industry of today will voluntarily revert to last-generation methods and practices.

"Efficiency is not only now of paramount importance in farming, but it may be expected that future years will intensify its need."

Trullinger says that in view of the nation's continuing tremendous production a "reasonable part" of the government's research effort will have to be devoted towards developing better distribution and marketing methods.

Trullinger adds that the American people would rather see surpluses of food and fiber—which might cause headaches—than be confronted with "terrible shortages."

The research specialist says it's possible that the U. S. may a some future time be faced with widespread crop failures. More people are being fed and clothed now in the nation than ever before and the population continues to rise.

The Diesel engine was invented by Rudolf Diesel, who patented it in 1892.

U.S. Move Hit

BUDAPEST, July 6—The Hungarian Communist Party organized a mass demonstration movement yesterday against United States intervention in Korea.

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. First of the Fine Cars in Value

The Car that puts your Best Foot forward

We think you'll agree that the whole story of an automobile isn't told in its power, its room, its styling, even in its ride.

There is the all-important point about what a car does to you—and that's where ROADMASTER really shines.

For you can't slip into this bonny beauty's broad seats without feeling like somebody pretty special.

When you take its neat wheel in your hand—when you cut loose, with a toe-touch, the rich baritone of its big Fireball straight-eight power plant—when you feel the smooth surge of its Dynaflow-cushioned take-off—

Man, then you know you've got a real automobile!

And don't overlook this:

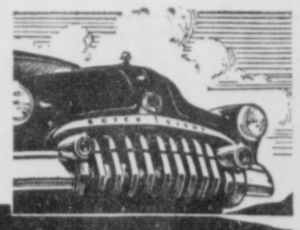
That graceful sweep of chrome along the fender—found on no other car made today—is a mighty eye-catching note of distinction.

Those four Ventiports, too, cause many a head to turn—they mark you unmistakably as the owner of the biggest and best Buick built—a car as fine and rich as any man has need for.

There are a lot of good, solid, dollars-and-cents reasons for making ROADMASTER your choice over any other car:

Its size. The commanding performance of its 152-hp Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight engine. Dynaflow Drive standard. A ride that's quite matchless in its gentle softness. Distinguished styling from bold, protective front end to gleaming "double bubble" taillight.

But if you're ready for a car that's more than just an automobile—if you want one that puts your best foot forward in any company—that's the real reason for seeing your Buick dealer quickly—to talk turkey about a ROADMASTER.



FOUR-WAY FOREFRONT
This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs — vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.

Trade Expert Says U.S. Should Bottle Know-How

PARIS, July 6—The president of the Institute of Foreign Trade of New York has proposed that America seal off its technological "know-how" from Russian scientists.

J. Anthony Marcus, longtime expert on Soviet commerce and industry, said Soviet scientists come to the United States for the purpose of "stealing" industrial and scientific "discoveries" to increase the striking power of the Soviet Union."

Marcus, who has visited Russia 14 times both on business and as a government official, took issue with the Danish atomic scientist, Dr. Niels Bohr, who urged that the U. S. lead the nations of the world in abandoning all international barriers to the free flow of all information. Marcus added:

"Dr. Bohr has his feet in Denmark but his head is hidden in the clouds. Although so close to the Soviet Union and the satellites, he doesn't seem to recognize that there is such an evil force on this continent.

"America has always been an open book to the world. As long as there were no Soviets, it worked. Even now untold hundreds of men of science and engineering and all other fields of endeavor are visiting the U. S. where almost nothing is being hidden from them.

"I HAVE WARNED Paul Hoffman (ECA chief) that among such men, coming under ECA auspices, there might be hidden iinformers of the Reds to get technological know-how with which to strengthen their aggressive plans.

"Although the Soviet government from its very birth has been keeping every bit of the work of its scientists under triple guard, it has been agitating through the gullible and naive scientists abroad that the rest of the world keep its laboratories and researches open."

Marcus added, "the reason is that in the stifling atmosphere of Soviet slavery Russian scientists are not producing anything worth while. Stalin therefore is working overtime to get the doors of Western institutions wide open to help him out. We would be worthless fools if we fell for that scheme."

UN HOLDING ITS STAND

Gromyko's Stinging Words Falling On Deaf Ears

NEW YORK, July 6—The curt but telling remark—"he has the wrong address"—has summed up United Nations reaction to the broadcast by Andrei Gromyko accusing the United States of aggression in Korea and demanding reversal of a resolution calling for international action.

It was made by a recent chairman of the UN Security Council a few hours after Soviet Russia's deputy foreign minister unlimbered his attack.

There is every indication at Lake Success and elsewhere in the Democratic world today that the Gromyko statement, representing as it does the considered policy of the Soviet Union in the present world crisis, will go ignored.

As of the moment, there are 41 members of the United Nations on record against the unprovoked aggression carried out by Communists from Northern Korea against the south.

This is an overwhelming majority of the 59 nations represented on the General Assembly.

There are expectations that before the week is over all of the countries outside the "walk-out bloc" of Soviet Russia and her satellites will have lined up.

• • •

THE MEASURE of military cooperation that can be given by some of them is negligible; in other cases it is better described as nil.

But the pressure of world opinion has put Russia on the defensive in this affair.

Each dispatch from the Korean battlefront and every new move by the United States to strengthen the precarious military naval and aerial situation on the Asiatic peninsula afford conclusive proof of two things:

1—The North Koreans, armed and trained by Russia, were overwhelming in strength and striking ability at the outset of the invasion.

2—South Koreans were ill prepared to withstand the onslaught—in itself a repudiation of Gromyko's charges.

The Soviet diplomat's stinging broadcast aroused immediate speculation about the possibility of Soviet withdrawal from the entire United Nations Organization.

Moscow's role is a passive one at present in any case. It is quite obvious that Premier Stalin will not order his delegates to go back to work unless or until Nationalist China is ejected and the representatives of Communist China replaced in its stead.

But the fact remains that without the United Nations, Russia will deprive herself of an important instrument of propaganda and of a sounding board of world reaction while she is engaged upon an adventure of incalculable consequences.

Pacifists Fast In Protest Of Korean War

WASHINGTON, N. J., July 6—Two married couples and a single man who belong to a tiny "world community" of pacifists were on a 14-day fast today in protest against the fighting in Korea.

The five urged both Russia and the United States in a statement to withdraw from Korea and influence the local leaders to settle their differences.

Those who vowed to eat nothing for two weeks and drink only water are Mr. and Mrs. David Dellinger, Mr. and Mrs. William Lovett and William Kuenning.

They are part of the Glen Gardner Cooperative, dedicated to world citizenship, established three years ago.

The group of 13 adults and six children derive their living from a printing plant and has 17 acres of land.

They were visited recently by Garry Davis, the American veteran who renounced his citizenship and proclaimed himself a world citizen.

Dr. Dameron said the project will seek to determine the advantages of television as an advertising and sales medium as well as a check on program popularity and effect of television on family life.

Sokolsky's

4. The next process has been the infiltration of government. By this method, they placed spies in every government. They encouraged natives to accept dual citizenship, belonging to the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics as primary citizenship and to whatever country they are required to work in at the moment. By a process of discipline, including blackmail and murder, as well as ideological fanaticism, they have succeeded in establishing themselves in every country. In the United States, where the Alger Hiss case should have been exceptional, the process has been astonishingly successful, because there has been no real resistance to it, and further because they have managed to attract extraordinarily able and well-bred personalities to their cause. Curiously, those opposing them have been identified as fascists and screwballs rather than as patriotic Americans.

5. Finally, they pushed, by military force, outward from the periphery of empire. They pushed out the bulwarks as they are now doing in Korea, as last year they did in China. Always they use natives, which makes their effort a revolution against intervention rather than an imperialistic war. The Chinese Communists, for instance, have been in training, under Russian tutelage, for 30 years, and the Chinese Communist armies are integral parts of the armies, not of Soviet Russia, but of the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics. It may seem the same, but it is different, because it gives the affiliated nations—the satellites, as we call them—a sense of integrity and autonomy.

The only effective impediment to this march of empire is the United States. Were the United States not available, the empire could by now be extended to include the entire Eurasian continent.

Engineers Fear Too Much Talk

CLEVELAND, July 6—An officer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers said today that work of the brotherhood's 11th triennial convention is being hampered by distrust among the delegates because of "leaks" to newsmen.

It was learned that officials of the brotherhood are seriously considering barring Cleveland as the place for the next meeting in 1953.

It was reported that the convention voted yesterday to add four assistant grand chief engineers to the union, despite a drop in membership from approximately 81,000 in 1947, to 80,000 today. The action increases the number of assistant grand chief engineers to 16.

Charles Heads For Training; Bout With Joe?

NEW YORK, July 6—Ezzard Charles headed back into training for defense of his National Boxing Association title today, and his manager indicated that the medically-approved champ may yet face Joe Louis.

Confirmation of the story came yesterday when Charles passed a physical examination in which four specialists found a muscle scar over his heart completely healed.

When asked if Charles would fight Louis, his manager, Jake Mintz, said merely, "we will fight anybody the International Boxing Club names."

Louis, who retired undefeated over a year ago, is one of the officials of the IBC. The INS Wednesday story said Charles would be found medically fit and said he will fight Louis for the title in a midwestern city in September.

The NBA champ now intends to take up training at his own gymnasium in Cincinnati.

Pacifists Fast In Protest Of Korean War

WASHINGTON, N. J., July 6—Two married couples and a single man who belong to a tiny "world community" of pacifists were on a 14-day fast today in protest against the fighting in Korea.

The five urged both Russia and the United States in a statement to withdraw from Korea and influence the local leaders to settle their differences.

Those who vowed to eat nothing for two weeks and drink only water are Mr. and Mrs. David Dellinger, Mr. and Mrs. William Lovett and William Kuenning.

They are part of the Glen Gardner Cooperative, dedicated to world citizenship, established three years ago.

The group of 13 adults and six children derive their living from a printing plant and has 17 acres of land.

They were visited recently by Garry Davis, the American veteran who renounced his citizenship and proclaimed himself a world citizen.

COLUMBUS, July 6—Television sales, advertising and subject matter today are under the study of Ohio State university.

Dr. Kenneth Dameron, professor of business organization, said the study stems from a pilot survey made a year ago.

As a part of the project, a graduate fellowship has been established. Applications are being received now.

Dr. Dameron said the project will seek to determine the advantages of television as an advertising and sales medium as well as a check on program popularity and effect of television on family life.

Sokolsky's

4. The next process has been the infiltration of government. By this method, they placed spies in every government. They encouraged natives to accept dual citizenship, belonging to the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics as primary citizenship and to whatever country they are required to work in at the moment. By a process of discipline, including blackmail and murder, as well as ideological fanaticism, they have succeeded in establishing themselves in every country. In the United States, where the Alger Hiss case should have been exceptional, the process has been astonishingly successful, because there has been no real resistance to it, and further because they have managed to attract extraordinarily able and well-bred personalities to their cause. Curiously, those opposing them have been identified as fascists and screwballs rather than as patriotic Americans.

5. Finally, they pushed, by military force, outward from the periphery of empire. They pushed out the bulwarks as they are now doing in Korea, as last year they did in China. Always they use natives, which makes their effort a revolution against disruption rather than an imperialistic war. The Chinese Communists, for instance, have been in training, under Russian tutelage, for 30 years, and the Chinese Communist armies are integral parts of the armies, not of Soviet Russia, but of the Federation of Soviet Socialist Republics. It may seem the same, but it is different, because it gives the affiliated nations—the satellites, as we call them—a sense of integrity and autonomy.

The only effective impediment to this march of empire is the United States. Were the United States not available, the empire could by now be extended to include the entire Eurasian continent.

Engineers Fear Too Much Talk

CLEVELAND, July 6—An officer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers said today that work of the brotherhood's 11th triennial convention is being hampered by distrust among the delegates because of "leaks" to newsmen.

It was learned that officials of the brotherhood are seriously considering barring Cleveland as the place for the next meeting in 1953.

It was reported that the convention voted yesterday to add four assistant grand chief engineers to the union, despite a drop in membership from approximately 81,000 in 1947, to 80,000 today. The action increases the number of assistant grand chief engineers to 16.

Charles Heads For Training; Bout With Joe?

NEW YORK, July 6—Ezzard Charles headed back into training for defense of his National Boxing Association title today, and his manager indicated that the medically-approved champ may yet face Joe Louis.

Confirmation of the story came yesterday when Charles passed a physical examination in which four specialists found a muscle scar over his heart completely healed.

When asked if Charles would fight Louis, his manager, Jake Mintz, said merely, "we will fight anybody the International Boxing Club names."

Louis, who retired undefeated over a year ago, is one of the officials of the IBC. The INS Wednesday story said Charles would be found medically fit and said he will fight Louis for the title in a midwestern city in September.

The NBA champ now intends to take up training at his own gymnasium in Cincinnati.

Pitchers Cracking New Marks, Ribs In Majors

NEW YORK, July 6 — Two pitchers who cracked the 11-game win circle and another who cracked four opposing batsmen in the ribs led the top three teams today in the merry Boston-less chase towards the American League pennant.

While the Red Sox, who still plead nolo contendere, were blowing a 9 to 7 game to the Washington Senators to fall seven and a half games off the pace, Detroit, New York and Cleveland all won yesterday and last night.

Art Houtteman of the Tigers and Bob Lemon of the Indians became baseball's first 11-game winners in the process. For the second-place Yankees, Tommy Byrne tied a record by hitting four batters with pitched balls.

The Yanks, with Byrne long in his bath but officially the winning pitcher, won a dreadful episode from the Philadelphia Athletics, 12 to 8. The game cost the A's the services of Shortstop Eddie Joost, who tore several knee ligaments in a second-base collision with Cliff Mapes, who was the Yanks' offensive hero with five runs batted in.

Houtteman won his 11th game in fine fashion, distributing nine St. Louis hits with care while his mates were upending the Browns, 6 to 1.

LEMON LIKEWISE strewed nine Chicago safeties while the Indians were bucketing the White Sox, 8 to 3.

That left Detroit four games up on the Yanks and five on the Indians.

In the confusion, the National League race continued to run tighter than a shoplifter's squint. Howie Pollet recorded his ninth success of the campaign as St. Louis conquered Cincinnati 5 to 3.

This kept the Cardinals one game to the good of the Philadelphia Phillies, who won two games from the New York Giants in the shallow space of nine full innings of play.

First Robin Roberts set down three Giants in order to make official the 9 to 7 Philly victory that was suspended May 14 with half an inning to go.

Then Russ Meyer lasted all the way through a 26-hit contest in which the Phils scored early and often to win 10 to 3. Del Ennis' punched a two-run homer in the sixth to punctuate a six-run Philadelphia rally.

Mel Queen of the forgotten Pittsburgh Pirates came up with the pitching gem of the day. His four-hit twirling, aided by Ralph Kiner's number 22 homerun, gave the last-place Bucs a 4 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Brooklyn and Boston, scheduled under the lights in Ebbets Field, were rained out.

Rain also halted the game in Boston's Fenway Park, but not before Al Evans had batted in two tie-breaking runs for Washington in the top of the seventh with a single. Earlier, Walt Dropo had hammered his 19th homer for the Red Sox with two on.

Ellis Kinder lost his ninth game in this one.

Jockey Lauded For Rescue Of Competitor

CHICAGO, July 6—The Illinois Racing Board made plans today for a public tribute to Jockey Ken Church who forgot about competition long enough to save a fellow rider from a bad spill and possible death in a race at Chicago's Arlington Park.

The brilliant Windsor, Canada, jockey staged the cowboy-style rescue in front of the crowded grandstand yesterday when Wendell Eads, aboard Trier, lost his left stirrup and dangled dangerously from the saddle just after the start of the third race.

Church, riding Hair Stylist, spurted alongside, pulled Eads back into the saddle and rode along with him until he had regained control of his mount.

Then Church took off after the leaders and brought Hair Stylist, a 7-2 favorite, home in second place, only a length behind the winner.

Eads said after the race that the rescue may have saved his life, for he had both legs on one side of his horse, one foot caught in the stirrup and was in danger of being dragged.

Secretary Joe Broderick of the Illinois board said Church will be honored at public ceremonies later in the Arlington Park meeting.

Browns Told To Curb Talk

NEW YORK, July 6—President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League said today Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler has carried out an IL suggestion and directed St. Louis Browns officials to stop talking about moving the Browns elsewhere.

"All the talk about moving the Browns to Baltimore has actually cut attendance in that city," Shaughnessy said, and added he thought Browns' President William DeWitt was just "looking for cheap publicity" when he said he had received bids from six other cities for the Browns.

Mexican Star May Finish Tribe's Great Infield

CLEVELAND, July 6—If Roberto Avila wins the regular second base job with the Cleveland Indians this season, he will mark the end of one of baseball's greatest infields.

Avila, who wants to become an example to the youth of his native Mexico, is trying to push aging Joe Gordon off the playing field and onto the bench. At present the 24-year-old "pepper pot" seems to have a good chance.

Along with Luke Easter, Ray Boone and Al Rosen, Avila helps to make up a young infield which, though highly-promising, doesn't compare with the inner defenses of 1948—the year the Indians won their second American League pennant and World Series.

The 1948 roster showed Eddie Robinson at first base, Gordon owned second, Boudreau was unquestionably "Mr. Shortstop" and Ken Keltner held third all to himself.

And when it came the Indians' turn to bat, the Tribe's "big four" turned in the best years of their baseball lives.

GORDON CLOUTED 32 homers and drove in 124 runs for second and fourth places in the league respectively; Keltner wound up one homerun behind Gordon and collected 119 RBIs for sixth spot; Boudreau's 106 runs-driven-in placed him eighth and Robinson accounted for 83 RBIs and 16 homeruns.

Second to Ted Williams for the batting crown, Boudreau finished his sensation year with the "most valuable player award." He also teamed with Keltner in winning the memorable playoff game against Boston which landed the Indians in the Series.

But two short years have seen Robinson traded to Washington and Chicago, Keltner unconditionally released and Boudreau relegated to become dugout leader of the Indians.

Only Gordon is left to battle for a position on the team and the great 35-year-old veteran is having a hard time covering ground which he blanketed in 1948.

Avila is hitting .311 while Gordon's once-mighty average has fallen to an even .200.

But the other members of the present infield have only arrived this season.

Easter, after a slow start, is now hitting some of the longest homeruns in the junior circuit and has lifted his average to .293. Also he is now second in the team's RBI department.

Boone has a sure pair of hands and one of the game's greatest shortstops for a teacher. His .344 average rates second on the squad.

Rosen has stepped from out of Keltner's shadow and is enjoying his place in the sun. Besides leading the American League with 25 homeruns, he paces the Indians with 73 runs-batted-in.

Only Bobby Avila has yet to take over full time at his position to complete the veteran-to-youth changeover.

Good Time Gets Favorite's Role

WESTBURY, N. Y., July 6—A field of the top ten pacers in the nation will go to the post tonight in the $25,000 National Pacing Derby at Roosevelt Raceway. Good Time was installed as the 2-1 favorite to take the rich stake event.

The fifth annual running of the derby finds Scottish Pence second favorite at 3-1 and Jerry The First as third choice at 9-2.

100 Pheasants Released Here By State Aide

More than 100 adult pheasants have been distributed in Pickaway County during the last few weeks.

Game Protector Clarence Francis reported that the birds, mostly hens, were the pheasants used for reproduction this Spring on the state game farms.

"We'll get more birds from about 12 weeks old later in July," said the game man.

Francis said that Pickaway County to date has not suffered any losses of game from flash floods or hails, although the statewide report shows heavy losses.

"We have a good game crop here now," Francis said. "If nothing happens between now and hunting season we'll have the best game crop we have had in 10 or 12 years."

Meanwhile, some 40,000 young pheasants reared on state game farms by some of the adult birds released here recently have been distributed to the hardest-hit areas.

"We'll get more birds from about 12 weeks old later in July," said the game man.

Francis said that Pickaway County to date has not suffered any losses of game from flash floods or hails, although the statewide report shows heavy losses.

"We have a good game crop here now," Francis said. "If nothing happens between now and hunting season we'll have the best game crop we have had in 10 or 12 years."

Meanwhile, some 40,000 young pheasants reared on state game farms by some of the adult birds released here recently have been distributed to the hardest-hit areas.

Farm Accidental Death Rate Higher Than Any Trade

Rural Toll Is Twice As High As Par

Safety Week Being Stressed

Local observers of rural safety reported this week that farm workers had an accidental death rate more than twice as high as workers in non-agricultural industries during 1949.

They quoted National Safety Council figures showing that the 1949 death rate for farm workers was 54 per 100,000 workers. Non-agricultural workers had a rate of 22.

The announcement of the occupational death rates gave emphasis to plans for the seventh annual National Farm Safety Week, proclaimed by President Truman for July 23-29.

Highlights of the council's annual report on accidents to farm residents were:

1. Total farm resident deaths from accidents were 17,000 in 1949, about the same as in 1948. Injuries totaled about 1,650,000.

2. Farm home deaths totaled 5,000, with approximately 750,000 nonfatal injuries.

3. Motor vehicles killed 6,500 farm residents in 1949 and injured 230,000 more.

4. THE TOTAL of 4,300 farm work deaths was down slightly—2 per cent—from 1948. Farm work deaths accounted for more than 25 per cent of the nation's occupational death toll for 1949.

5. Public non-motor vehicle deaths, such as drownings, took the lives of about 2,000 farm residents.

On the basis of these figures, the council said that one of every 17 farm residents in the United States will suffer a disabling injury from an accident in 1950.

In the hope that more precaution will characterize farm life this year, farm and safety leaders throughout the nation are mobilizing for National Farm Safety Week to call attention to the heavy accident toll, and to educate farm residents in the measures that will prevent mishaps.

A different phase of farm safety will be stressed each day of National Farm Safety Week, according to the following schedule announced by the council:

Sunday will be Church Day, designed to accent the dignity of human life and the Fifth Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

Home safety will be Monday's theme, to highlight good housekeeping.

Tuesday will feature livestock safety, with the accent on handling animals safely.

Wednesday will emphasize safety from falls.

Thursday will be Highway Safety Day.

Machinery safety will be the theme on Friday.

Saturday will be Farm Safety Review Day.

Columbus School Budget Hiked

COLUMBUS, July 6 — The Columbus board of education is expected today to adopt a record-breaking $10 million operating budget.

The proposed budget is an increase of $768,000 over this year's expenditures. Salary adjustments and expansion of services are expected to be the major causes of the increase.

During its meeting last night, the board also appointed Edgar W. House of Columbus as principal of North high school. Formerly principal at Indianola junior high school, he succeeds H. P. Swain who retired.

Bribes Claimed

AKRON, July 6—Two alleged gamblers in the Akron area—William Smith and Edward Bowers—were indicted by a Summit County grand jury yesterday on charges of offering bribes to city officials.

Senate Loyalty Panel Calls 'Final' Parley On McCarthyism

WASHINGTON, July 6 — Senate loyalty investigators today called a special meeting for Friday which may end their inquiry into charges by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., of Communism in the State Department.

Officially, the meeting has been called by Chairman Tydings, (D) Md., to reach conclusions of the four months of hearings held on McCarthy's charges.

There seems to be no chance of any unanimous agreement.

It is expected that the two Republican members of the committee will be given the choice of going along with a report now being drafted by the three Democrats or making a minority report of their own—with every indication they will take the latter course.

The Republicans—Sens. Hickenlooper, Iowa, and Lodge, Mass.,—have opposed strongly the issuance of a report at this time, declaring that the Red probe still has a long way to go before any conclusions can be reached.

McCARTHY, himself, is expected to take the Senate floor today or tomorrow to declare that he has no intention of giving up his fight, because of either the international picture or abandonment of the investigation by Tydings.

Tydings and the other Democrats on the committee, Sens. McMahon, Conn., and Green, R. I., insist that the report they are putting out will be just an "interim" affair, but it is expected by most observers to mark "finish" to the active investigation of McCarthy's charges.

McCarthy told newmen today that he understood the committee had reversed an earlier position and had decided to withhold indefinitely the contents of testimony given at closed door hearings.

Committee Counsel Edward Morgan denied this, however, asserting that the entire testimony—public and secret—would be released. In fact, it was learned, all the testimony, running to many pages, has already been set up in type.

Fixup Ordered

YOUNGSTOWN, July 6 — Immediate repairs on nearly all defects found in the Mahoning County jail by Fire Chief Leroy Halstead have been ordered by county commissioners. The commissioners added, however, that a sprinkler system and additional exit doors will not be installed as per Halstead's request.

4 Heirs Named In Estate Here

Four persons have been found heirs of O. W. Whitlock in Pickaway County common pleas court.

As such the four are entitled to a one-fourth share of proceeds from sale of a one-tenth interest in real estate. The property was sold recently in a public sale.

The four entitled to share the proceeds are Huston E., Jack D., and Robert J. Whitlock and Alva J. Higgins.

Controls Ended

AKRON, July 6—Rents will be decontroled in Akron in 30 days. The city council voted the decontrol last night by a 9 to 3 margin. Suburban Cuyahoga Falls will hold a public meeting on the rent control issue July 26.
